FIGHTING AT TORREON WITH ISSUE IN DOUBT.

Villa Rushes Cavalry to Check Advance of the Federal Forces.

Ex-Bandit Chief Declares that He Is So Far Unaware of Movement in Force, but Censorship at Juarez Indicates a Constitutionalist Reverse — Mexican Outrage Below San Diego Arouses Border to a Frenzy.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

TORREON (Tex.) March 15.—A general forward movement of both the Mexican Federal and rebel forces at Torreon was begun today preliminary, it is believed, to the opening of the long-awaited battle for possession of that city, according to a Chihuahua dispatch to the Houston Post.

In the first skirmishes, the Constitutionalists, it is said, were put to flight but in later minor engagements the rebel troops were reported victorious.

Orders were given by Gen. Francisco Villa for the advance of his troops last night. His action was caused by the interception of a wireless message from President Huerta, in Mexico City to Gen. Refugio Velasco, commanding the Federal garrison at Torreon. As caught by Villa's wireless station, the message directed the latter to take the offensive against the insurgents.

A special train has been started for Juarez to bring Gen. Felipe Angeles, Secretary of War in the Cabinet of Francisco I. Madero, to Chihuahua to confer with Col. Servin Maass, commander of the rebel advance division, and with the extreme front rebel forces. A Federal movement westward through Canyon La Boca, owing to its proximity to the American border, had not been protested by the Constitutionalists, the small rebel force retiring before the Federals.

Reports that 2000 men at Escalon, Durango, had begun to move southward to advance and reinforce the garrison at Torreon, and other points along his battle front to the immediate northward of Torreon.

A later report from the front said Gen. Aguirre Benavides had proceeded southward from Conejos in response to Gen. Villa's order to retreat and encountering a large body of Federals south of Peronal, drove them into Bermejillo. Losses were not reported.

Gen. Villa is said to be impatient for the arrival of Gen. Angeles, in order that he may get to the scene of battle. He has suspended regular train service, as all rolling stock will be used for troop movement.

CENSORED VERSION FROM GEN. VILLA.

CHIHUAHUA (Mex.) March 15—(Censored.) If there has been any real fighting in the vicinity of Torreon, Gen. Villa doesn't know it, he said tonight. He scouted the rumor that the Federals had advanced northwest from Torreon to meet him, and as indicating his opinion of the reports, said he only hoped that the enemy would not evacuate their stronghold, as he hoped to capture most of them.

Gen. Villa's utterances were accepted here as putting a quietus on reports, apparently based on little or nothing, that the rebel army might be called upon to defend Chihuahua. The story had it that Gen. Orozco was about to execute a flank movement in conjunction with an advance by Gen. Velasco from Torreon. This, Gen. Villa said, was too silly a report to require comment.

It is said that Gen. Pedro Ojeda, who has been operating on the Pa-

HUNT LEADERS IN REBEL PLOT.

Friends of Felix Diaz Said to Be Implicated.

Federals May Prevent Trip of Gen. Carranza.

American Negro's Execution Reported by Friends.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

JUAREZ, March 15.—Constitutionalist circles were thrown into an uproar today by the alleged discovery of an organized plot to assassinate Gen. Carranza during his journey over the Continental Divide, en route to this city. An investigation is being made by partisans of the First chief and rumors are current tonight that a number of arrests will be made before morning. Manuel Bonilla, former Minister of Fomento in the Cabinet of the late President Madero, and Alberto Pina, a supposed close personal friend of Carranza, already have been arrested in Nogales, according to information received here, and upon examining their effects this morning it is asserted that documents were discovered incriminating some of the leaders of the new provisional capital.

While little information is obtainable at this time, it is commonly understood that the alleged plotters were working in the interest of Gen. Felix Diaz, whose agents are about ready to start a counter revolution, it is said.

The plan of assassination is said to involve a team of sharpshooters armed with high-powered rifles, equipped with Maxim silencers. Carranza was to be picked off from an ambuscade as he rode by on horseback.

Corroboration of the report that 150 Federals were camped at the T. O. ranch opposite Sierra Blanca was received today, but there seems to be a scarcity of rebel troops to send in pursuit of the filibusters. The Federals are well supplied with arms and mounts and are expected to join the Quevedo brothers and Orosco in making an attempt to resist Carranza and his escort. The latter is scheduled to leave the Mormon colony of Morelos tonight, but those acquainted with the general's habits believe that he will remain over in order to attend a fiesta which will be given in his honor.

Published reports to the effect that the Federal prisoners at Ft. Bliss had constructed an underground tunnel with the intention of escaping from the United States troops were exploded today by the military authorities at the camp who branded the canard as a "mistake." Likewise the report circulated today that all but 175 prisoners had been sent back to Mexico proved equally untrue.

A large number of Federal sympathizers were recruited today and are being quietly shipped to Sierra Blanca, where they will join the men at the T. O. ranch, but the authorities assert that none of the prisoners at Ft. Bliss had succeeded in eluding the sentries.

More than a dozen Constitutionalist officers from Agua Prieta were able to laugh at the so-called border patrols and came through from Douglas by train without molestation. It is now admitted that Gen. Angeles adopted this method as stated in yesterday's dispatches. The story of the long automobile ride was a fake.

Communications with Chihuahua were interrupted today, but they may be opened later to allow press dispatches to come through, although Villa asserted that the tie-up of both railroads and telegraph would be complete until after the Torreon fight.

James Logan, an American negro, who was one of the men arrested yesterday on the charge of being a spy, is said to have been released, but his friends assert that he did not arrive on the American side. They have informed Consul Edwards that Logan and two others were probably executed before daylight, as three volleys were heard at that time.

The Constitutionalists ordered inquirers to leave immediately. An effort was made to reach the Consul, but that official was said to be "out."

CENSORSHIP AT JUAREZ.

JUAREX (Mex.) March 15.—Inauguration of a rigid censorship over the telegraph line tonight is believed here to indicate that important fighting already has occurred in the Torreon region, or that Villa has begun the long-awaited attack on Torreon.

The chief operator here said that press dispatches might come through from Chihuahua later tonight. Unconfirmed reports had it that the Federals and rebels clashed in some force between Escalon and Bermejillo yesterday and the sudden descent of the censor gave rise to rumors that the rebels were defeated, as officials are not slow to make public news of favorable character.

James Logan, an American negro, is locked up here charged with being a spy. Consul Edwards was assured today that no summary action would be taken in the case. Logan is said to have been out of work and to have frequented gambling halls here.

cific Coast, has just joined the garrison at Torreon.

In the course of conversations today the old subject of Villa's loyalty to Carranza came up and the former took occasion to emphasize his devotion to the supreme chief of the revolution.

He was asked concerning the reports that ultimately he expects to be President of Mexico. It was suggested that his loyalty to Carranza as provisional President would not prevent him from becoming a candidate when an election is ordered, provided always that the Constitutionalist cause is successful.

"Present conditions warrant me only in hoping for the success of the revolution," he said. "I have formed no idea as to who will succeed Huerta and assume the task of re-establishing a just government over my country. I have no ambition at present other than to defeat the Federals—what the future holds in store none of us know, but I am satisfied that the Mexican people soon will enter upon an era of peace, contentment, prosperity and progress."

HUERTA DECLINES TO PAY BILLS.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Pending Charge O'Shaughnessy's report, there was no official comment here tonight on the action of the Huerta government in giving notice that it would refuse to meet the cost of maintaining the Mexican Federal refugees now held by the United States at Ft. Bliss. It was pointed out, however, that since the United States government has no intention of recognizing Gen. Huerta and expects to put in its claim for expense in connection with the interned fugitives after a new government has been installed at Mexico City, the attitude of the Huerta regime in this matter is of no moment.

HASTE IS NEEDFUL.

As the season for planting roses as dormant plants is practically ended, The Times will discontinue the distribution of rose plants to its subscribers on Wednesday, the 18th inst.

Since The Times inaugurated the practice of presenting roses to its readers, approximately 80,000 plants have been given away, and the necessity for discontinuing their distribution is due solely to the fact that dormant rose plants cannot be planted with any assurance of successful growth after the date mentioned.

By gratuitously distributing plants that will grow and enhance the beauty of the landscape, The Times believes that it has conferred a benefit upon its readers, but to urge the planting of roses at a time when it is probable they would not prosper would work a hardship upon persons whom it is most anxious to serve.

Orders for roses will be issued by The Times up to and including Wednesday, the 18th inst. No orders, regardless of the date of issue, will be accepted by the nurseryman after Wednesday, March 18th.

Don't delay—get your roses immediately.

LONE STAR EXECUTIVE ASKS SHEPPARD TO QUIT.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

AUSTIN (Tex.) March 11.—Gov. O. B. Colquitt has gained nation-wide prominence by his strong condemnation of President Wilson's Mexican policy. As the executive of the State that has suffered most from the condition of affairs in Mexico, Colquitt has claimed the right to protect the lives and property of Texans regardless of the policy of the United States.

In reply to the attack of Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas on his attitude toward the present administration, the Governor has challenged Sheppard to resign and oppose him for the Senatorship in order to decide whose policy is favored by the people of Texas.

Gov. Colquitt recently received congratulatory messages from all parts of the United States on his attitude on the Mexican question and the part he played in the recovery of the body of Clemente Vergara, the American who was murdered by the Mexican Federals. Among these messages was one from William T. Haines, Republican Governor of the State of Maine.

TEXAS RANGERS FORCE ASSIGNED TO BORDER DUTY

AUSTIN (Tex.) March 15.—The entire force of Texas Rangers, totaling at present only fifteen mounted men, was assigned to duty on the 800 miles of Texas-Mexico border today with the arrival of two rangers at Raymondville, Tex., in response to an appeal from citizens there for protection against cattle thieves and desperadoes.

Gov. O. B. Colquitt made public a long list of Texas border troubles on which his appeals for more power to protect the boundary have been based and which explain the nature of the rangers' activities.

Many of the incidents mentioned by the Governor were comparatively petty crimes, the handling of which by rangers, records show, prevented them from developing probable international complications.

The sending of rangers to Raymondville was based on a petition asserting that "for the past few months cattle thieves have been depredating and several murders have been committed."

Another petition making similar charges was made public tonight from Sebastian, Tex. J. R. Hughes, a ranger captain, who brought these petitions to Austin after a personal investigation, said an American named Rowell had been killed and that several Mexicans were reported slain; that the killings were alleged to have grown out of depredations by persons who took refuge in Mexico and that the petitioners believed more police protection would allay the trouble.

MERCADO FEARS ASSASSINATION.

FT. BLISS (Tex.) March 15.—Gen. Salvator Mercado, who led the Federal stampede from Ojinaga to safety on the American side, wrote to Gen. Scott today saying that fellow-prisoners in the camp were threatening to assassinate him because they blamed their plight on his incapacity as a military leader. Gen. Scott believes that Mercado's mind has been affected from long illness, but he promised to see that no harm should befall him.

News that the Huerta government would not pay for their keep in the prison camp was received apathetically by the prisoners. The quarantine having been raised, many women and children are leaving the camp. Some of the wives of officers are taking residences in El Paso.

President of Railways in New York to Confer on System's Impending Obligations.

NEW YORK, March 15. — E. N. Brown, president of the National Railways of Mexico arrived in New York yesterday and will confer with a group of international bankers regarding the road's impending obligations.

On April 1 the semi-annual interest on $51,000,000 of the company's 4 per cent. general mortgage bonds guaranteed by the Mexico government, will mature. The government advanced a part of the funds required for last October's payment, but up to this time has given no intimation of what it intends to do respecting the April interest.

Mr. Brown will also make known to the bankers the condition of the Mexican Railway system at this time. Officials of the road say that the situation has improved and that about 65 per cent. of mileage is being operated, against little more than 50 per cent. early in the year. This is reflected in gross earnings, those for February being relatively good.

CONFUCIANISM RE-ESTABLISHED.

Is Obligatory Only for Certain Chinese Officials.

Freedom of Worship Allowed Throughout Republic.

Famous "Altar of Heaven" for Shi Kai's Devotions.

[BY PACIFIC CABLE.]

PEKING, March 15.—Accompanying the mandates which have just been promulgated prescribing the worship of heaven and of Confucius by the President and certain provincial officials, there is one explaining that this does not mean that China has adopted a state religion. The documents attract wide interest because of the long controversy to which they come as at least a temporary termination. They are taken as a declaration on the part of the President and while his government intends to worship in the way that Chinese governments have been worshipping for centuries, it will not interfere with the religions of those who believe in worship in another form. The mandates read in part as follows:

"Religious liberty is observed throughout the world. Our republic is composed of five races, Chinese, Manchus, Mongolians, Mohammedans and Thibetans, and their historical traditions differ. Their religious beliefs are difficult, therefore, to unify. It would not be easy to adopt a state religion, for such a step might be contrary to the wishes of the people. But sacrifices offered at the proper seasons to the ancient saints and sages, as prescribed in the laws of the late Ching Dynasty, did not touch the question of religion. Since they are not in conflict with a republican form of government they should be continued as a token of respect on the part of the succeeding generations. It will become generally known that the ceremonies now prescribed are performed, and there is danger that the ceremonies will be construed as the beginning of the establishment of a national religion. It is, therefore, necessary to make known the principle which prompted the restoration of the ancient rites, and to state that they are in response to the wishes of the majority to express their reverence and veneration for the saints and sages and to preserve the traditions of thousands of years. The choice of religion is still left to the people. This is according to the liberty guaranteed by the constitution and in accord with the practice of the world. This order is issued to avert possible misunderstanding and suspicion.

In promulgating the decision of the Administrative Council, the President, after repeating the council's report, says:

"I, the President, am aware that the ceremony of sacrifice-offering to heaven has been held in great reverance since remote times and preserved by the government of China through successive ages. For the people to fast and 'cleanse themselves,' and pay profound respect to the Deity, is rational; and no clause has ever existed in the institutions of the country prohibiting or restricting their observance. I hereby order that the sacrifice-offering to heaven shall be made a universal ceremony. The recommendations of the Administrative Council regarding the place and time of sacrifice are hereby approved. The Ministry of the Interior is ordered to collect opinions of renowned authorities and decide upon the special designs for the ceremonial hat and costume, the character of the ceremony, the articles to be used, etc., and to submit them for consideration and approval."

The place chosen for this worship on the part of the President is the famous altar of heaven, where the Emperors of succeeding dynasties have knelt and offered thanks and supplications to the open skies. The altar is a vast circular marble dais, or rather, a series of daises rising one upon another, the center circle, where the Emperor formerly knelt as son of heaven and mediator between his people and the diety, being considered in former days the center of the universe.

On two sides of the altar are rows of huge open furnaces of wrought iron, and a larger one of masonry, where the ox is sacrificed. It has been several years since the Emperor bowed upon the altar in person; and it is not planned that the President shall perform the ceremony till the winter solstice in December next, for the rite is an annual service. The altar, and also the temple and the imperial buildings in the grounds, have been neglected and are now in need of much repair, and so overgrown with weeds that the pathways are almost impassable.

Not only has time been permitted to put its mark upon the place, but the vandal, too, has done his work. Movable things have been taken away, in many cases stolen, till only a splendid throne surrounded by a dragon screen, such as it is to be seen only in the forbidden city, remains. Huge pieces of the carved marble have been hacked off the altar and the temple. Much of the wrecking has been done by foreigners but not all; the Chinese themselves are to some extent guilty.

The place has been almost totally neglected since the Manking government proclaimed the republic. The young republicans were ashamed of many things that differed from things of the western world, Manchu costumes, customs and even historic places. The temple and altar of heaven came under the ban.

The place has never been restricted to the presence of the court only; foreigners and some Chinese had been permitted to visit it even in Manchu days. But since the republic was proclaimed it has become a sort of public park, and considered a relic of the dynasty that has passed. Nor would it be fair to give the impression that the vandalism and the lack of care have come entirely with the republic. The Manchus also were negligent. They took, indeed, little care of the grounds, and only once a year was the enclosure put in order for the Emperor's visit.

Now, under Yuan Shi Kai—if he is permitted to fulfill his project—this historical place of worship is likely to be kept in order and renewed where it has been wrecked. It is well known that the present President is a protector of China's monuments and works of art. Since he has come to dictatorial powers orders have been issued on several occasions tending to protect and preserve historical places, monuments and treasures.

It is also noticeable in the winter palace, which he occupies, that what is known as "smartness" has taken the place of wreckage, dirt and decay. Fresh paint has covered the buildings which had not been refreshed since the death of the renowned Empress Dowager; weeds have been rooted up and replaced by flowers; uniformed soldiers have taken the place of eunuchs, and servants with clean linen gowns have displaced filthy ones.

Not all the criticism of the President's present action is hostile. Confucianists, of course, are generally pleased. For, besides the worship of heaven, the President and certain government officials will burn incense and offer sacrifices in the temple of literature twice a year to the spirit of Confucius.

WEST POINTERS TO DINE.

Today's Celebration at New York Is to Be Attended by 150 Graduates, Including Col. Goethals.

NEW YORK, March 15.—One hundred and fifty graduates of West Point, including army officers stationed in and about New York and civilian residents of the city, will celebrate the 112th anglversary of the founding of the United States Military Academy at a dinner to be given here tomorrow night.

Gen. Horace Porter, '60, will preside. The speakers will include Gen Horatio G. Gibson, '47, the oldest living graduate of the academy; Loyal Farragut, '68; Gen. Robert K. Evans, '75, now commanding the eastern division of the army, and Police Commissioner Douglas I. McKay, '05.

Others who will be present are Col. George W. Goethals, '80, and two former Police Commissioners of New York City, Gen. Francis V. Greene, '70, and Gen. Theodore A. Bingham, '79. It is expected that as a result of this dinner a New York association of graduates of the Military Academy will be formed.

CRITICISE WILSON'S POLICY.

But While Speakers at Harvard Club Anniversary Find Fault, They Urge Support to Administration.

PHILADELPHIA, March 15.—Fifty-nine Harvard clubs were represented last night at the fiftieth anniversary of the Harvard Club of Philadelphia. Among the speakers were President Lowell of Harvard, former Gov. Willson of Kentucky, and Maj. Henry L. Higginson of Boston. Owen Wister, president of the local club, was toastmaster.

Former Gov. Willson and Maj. Higginson in their speeches referred to the present administration at Washington, and although each found some fault with it they urged that the administration should be supported. President Lowell devoted his speech to college affairs and vigorously denied that Harvard was exclusively a rich man's college.

BETTER CHANCE OF LIBERTY.

Jury Decides Mrs. Ida Von Clausen, Sent to Matteawan Following Indictment, Is Mentally Competent.

NEW YORK, March 15.—Mrs. Ida von Clausen, who on January 9 was sent to the Matteawan Hospital for the Criminal Insane following her indictment for sending a threatening letter to former Water Commissioner Charles Strauss, was yesterday adjudged "competent to manage her own person and property" by the unanimous verdict of a sheriff's jury. While the verdict does not set her free, Mrs. von Clausen, it is said, will now have a better chance ultimately to gain her liberty.

Her brother, Matthew von Clausen, yesterday testified that he could not recognize as that of his sister the handwriting of the letter sent to Strauss.

ESPOUSE CAUSE OF THE I.W.W.

Sacramento Ministers Plead for Hobos from Dishearting.

Woman Likens "Gen." Kelly to Napoleon Bonaparte.

SACRAMENTO, March 15. At the point of disbanding as a result of moving eastward with their members in as small numbers as authorities would permit, the ranks of the "unemployed army" in the Yolo side of the Sacramento were roused again into their action to move on to Washington, the promise of food from the Methodist Church Federation and a fiery speech delivered by Jim Bates of this city, in which he likened the I.W.W. to a great cause and compared Gen. Napoleon Bonaparte.

That the "army," the which was broken yesterday morning, will now take new life and refuse to move unless it be on its way bound for Washington, D. C., seems a certainty.

A service was held in the open air on the river bank by the sisters of Sacramento, and they were grouped some 300 strong and employed. It was purely a service of brotherly love. When it ended a collection was taken among the idle army and almost $14 was raised.

Mrs. Bates then jumped on a box and in spite of the pleas of the sisters began an address.

"You're all noble fellows engaged in a great cause—the cause of freedom—and I love you for it. I bless you for your noble work. You look good to me," she said in the same sense.

More than 100 of the men left today and it is not thought that there would have been 150 left by tonight. Mrs. Bates' appeals to the failing courage of the men failed tonight they had gathered no more recruits. The army has no plan of action.

The Rev. A. R. Pelton of the Congregational Church and S. Fraser Langford of the Baptist Church were among the speakers at the service. Both are employed and they took up a collection. This morning they used tomorrow to buy food for the unemployed.

Langford said: "We will use the money to buy food with the money collected today, but we have another motion of trying to reach the idle men here. We did not approve of Mrs. Bates addressing the men and left when she began to talk."

NICARAGUA TREATY.

Another question included in the relations of the government it is planned to undertake for consideration, is the pending treaty with Nicaragua, negotiated by the Taft administration, which the present administration wishes to have ratified as soon as possible. The Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate expects to begin to appear Wednesday in the matter of the administration's policy relating to the treaty, which was primarily for acquirement by the United States of the Nicaraguan rights and rights to a naval station in the Bay of Fonseca, in return for a payment of $3,000,000.

DOUBLE TRACK A RIVER.

In the Case of the Father of Waters It Would Prevent Future Floods, Mr. Lake Says.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Before the Senate Commerce Committee yesterday, considering the means of preventing Mississippi floods, S. L. Lake of Memphis, Tenn., proposed a "double-tracking" of the river. He would have the government dig a channel from Cairo to the Gulf, 110 yards wide and twelve feet deep, three miles distant from the present river bed. To acquire land for that purpose, Mr. Lake declared, would cost $18,000,000. He gave no estimate of the cost of construction of such a canal.

Levees, he said, always will be ineffectual against floods as their foundations always are sandy and the levee system is "like trying to drive the Mississippi through a quill."

Bryan to Celebrate Fifty-fourth Birthday by Signing Three Peace Treaties With South America.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Secretary Bryan is planning to make his fifty-fourth birthday next Thursday one of the most significant he has ever celebrated. He expects to sign on that day peace treaties with the three republics of South America, Argentina, Brazil and Chile.

All of these countries have signified their willingness and details for the signing were about completed yesterday, when Secretary Bryan was notified that Brazil had instructed Ambassador Da Gama to register her approval. Senor Suares, Chilean Minister, will ask his government to send his instructions by cable in case they do not arrive by mail before next Thursday.

USE DYNAMITE IN RONALD MINE.

UNIONIST ATTEMPT FOILED BY DEFECTIVE EXPLOSIVE.

Ten Sticks of the Standard Laborite Argument Placed in the New Cutting Machine of the Roslyn Cascade Coal Company Fail to Go Off.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ROSLYN (Wash.) March 15.—It was announced today as the theory of mine owners and police that efforts made Friday by unknown persons to dynamite the coal-cutting machine recently installed by the Roslyn Cascade Coal Company at its mines at Ronald, a camp further up in the mountains, which were foiled by the age of the explosives used, was the work of disgruntled unionites who objected to the installation of the labor-saving device.

Two attempts were made to destroy the machine, the first being made with dynamite, the second with giant powder.

When Robert Duncan, the operator of the machine, went to start it, the electric current set fire to the powder, but he and his assistants escaped injury. The machine was partially wrecked but not beyond repair.

After the fire an examination disclosed that ten sticks of dynamite had been used in the first attempt, but none had fully exploded. Officers of the company stated today that several union laborers were known to have made threats following introduction of the machine, which does the work of several men.

The officials of the company declare the use of the machine was not sought to reduce the number of men employed, but to increase the amount of lump coal produced and further that unless the company uses the machine already injured or others it will have to cut down the operation of one mine at least.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Declares New Power Boat Squadron Most Useful Auxiliary.

BOSTON, March 15.—"The government is looking upon the new United States power boat squadron as one of the ultimate component parts of the naval reserve," Franklin D. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, said last night at the annual meeting of the Boston Yacht Club. He had argued for a bigger navy, and referred to the need of 1000 more officers and 30,000 additional men.

He said the power boat squadron, recently organized among the yacht clubs of the Atlantic Coast, was expected to prove a feeder for the navy in time of war, and to serve as an auxiliary to it eventually.

ON THE INCURABILITY OF BRIGHT'S DISEASE

Suppose we agree with those who believe Bright's Disease incurable and use the term "life prolonged." Now let us cite three cases.

It was twenty-two years ago that the daughter of the late N. W. Spaulding, then Mayor of Oakland, was at the end of a long siege of Bright's Disease with dropsy and looked upon as hopeless. It was twenty-four years ago that Mrs. M. Empey of Steiner street, was in such a condition due to Bright's Disease and dropsy that "two of our best physicians" gave her up. It was fourteen years ago that "the most noted analyst in this city" passed on the genuineness of the supposed incurable case of Bright's Disease of Editor R. M. Wood of this city.

All of the above are pursuing their daily avocations at this writing, January, 1914.

The ability of Fulton's Renal Compound to reduce albumen in many cases of Bright's Disease is not a matter of opinion, but a FACT IN PHYSICS and we will mail formula for albumen tests that will show the percentage from week to week. As the albumen declines improvement commonly follows recoveries having been reported in thousands of cases. Formula and literature sent on request. Joan J. Fulton Co., San Francisco.

MOB IN CONTROL AT TERRE HAUTE

Street-Car Strike Develops Into a Riot.

Police Fail to Protect Property from Violence.

City Orders Company to Carry No Passengers.

TERRE HAUTE (Ind.) March 15.—With the traction employees' strike situation apparently quieted tonight, the police department has sworn in nearly 100 special patrolmen and taken precaution to protect property and supply guards. The street cars operated today carried patrolmen but the company was ordered by the city authorities to accept no passengers. The mob dispersed early this morning after wrecking the terminal station.

A mass meeting at Central Labor Union Hall today sought to fix responsibility for the reported call of the strike. Union labor leaders declare the strike had no official sanction. The speakers deplored the action of the mob which last night wrecked cars, assaulted street-car men and demolished the interior of the terminal station.

Deputy United States Marshals Rankin and Martin came today and served summons on the leaders to appear before the Federal Court in Indianapolis tomorrow to show cause why they should not be held in contempt of court. The complaint is that the strike was in violation of an injunction granted January 8, on petition of the Fidelity Trust Company of Philadelphia, which charged that certain unionists in Terre Haute and Indianapolis threatened to agitate a strike which would imperil the property of the traction company.

Manager T. F. Grover of the traction company said tonight that employees had been ordered to report for duty tomorrow. He said cars would be operated if the company be given police protection. Regular patrolmen have been assigned to protect the company's property, while the special men are used in the districts.

MOB RULES THE CITY.

TERRE HAUTE (Ind.) March 15.—A strike of street-car employees here last night developed riots which the police were powerless to stop. Cries of "strike" drew crowds to the streets and from pulling conductors and motormen from cars the mob turned to wrecking cars.

After breaking the windows of a dozen cars which were stalled in the business section of the city because of cut trolley guy wires, the crowd, which was growing to a mob of more than 2000, moved to the traction terminal station. The plate-glass windows were wrecked by clubs and paving blocks. The leaders then entered the building and wrecked the interior.

Street-car service was abandoned at 10:30 o'clock. After all the day patrolmen were called out for emergency duty, the police said they got the situation in hand at 12:30 o'clock. No arrests were made but the crowds quickly dispersed.

The strike was ordered by T. T. Taylor, business agent of the local carmen's union, who declared the action was decided upon because the company had refused to arbitrate the grievances of three men who had been discharged. He said the company declined to act in accordance with the ruling of the independent public utilities commission.

T. F. Grover, general manager of the street car company, asserted that only three employees of the company had responded to the strike call and that the rest of the men had been forced off the cars.

NEW YORK, March 15.—Cardinal Farley has arranged to sail for Rome on April 25. He will be accompanied by his secretary and a special party of clergymen of the diocese.

According to Monsignor Lavelle, rector of the cathedral, the cardinal's visit at this time has no special significance.

WHAT TO DO FOR NEURALGIA

The one great symptom of neuralgia is pain; the one great cause is lack of nutrition for the nerves, in plain language—starved nerves.

There are two things to do for any form of neuralgia. Apply heat to the affected part to soothe the pain, and feed the nerves by taking a tonic containing the elements needed by them. Heat, as afforded by hot flannel, hot water bags, etc., lulls the inflamed nerves into temporary quiet. It does not cure. Not until the nutrition of the nerves is restored will the inflammation subside.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills furnish to the blood the needed elements and the blood conveys them to the nerves. The only way of getting food or medicine to the nerves is through the blood. Remember that.

Neuralgia is a general term. It means inflammation of a nerve. It is given different names according to the nerve affected. Sciatica is neuralgia of the sciatic nerve. Application of heat will soothe the pain in all forms of neuralgia and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will correct the condition that caused it.

Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., will send you a little book on "Home Treatment of Nervous Disorders" for the asking.

made a deep and favorable impression that has given the valley a big impetus.

Col. Holabird not only declares that the extension of the system marks the limit for at least ten years, but predicts that in the next twelve months Imperial Valley resources and development will be remarkably increased. The bringing of water through splendidly constructed canals to the great north end tract of 90,000 acres has rounded out and completed the richest agricultural empire in the world.

Acreage sales in small tracts yesterday and today indicate strongly that the new north end tract will be more intensively cultivated than any other part of the valley. There will be more people to the square mile, greater production to the acre, and greater tributary production to the new city of Niland.

A considerable part of the five and ten-acre tracts sold today will be planted to oranges, grapefruit and deciduous fruit. Announcements today in this respect make it certain that the most important fruit district of the valley will be in this part of the valley.

Certain-teed ROOFING
CERTAIN-TEED LABEL OF QUALITY
GUARANTEED

The General says:—

Buy roofing by this label—it's your advance proof that you're going to get the service for which you pay.

WHY THE QUALITY OF CERTAIN-TEED ROOFING IS HIGHER ALTHOUGH THE COST TO YOU IS LOW.

By George M. Brown, President General Roofing Manufacturing Company

There is one great big point about Certain-teed Roofing that I want to impress as forcibly as I can upon your mind.

It costs you less and gives you more. When I say it costs you less, I do not mean that you can't buy roofing at a lower price. You can—much lower in some cases. But you cannot figure cost merely by the price you pay. You've got to consider the years of service.

A Certain-teed Roof will last 15 years or more. Even if you pay a few dollars less for some other roofing to cover the same area, and it dries up and leaks and has to be done over in a year or two or possibly five—it has cost you many times the cost of Certain-teed per year.

Certain-teed Roofing is the highest quality possible for skilled men and perfect machines to make of the best raw products obtainable. There is no step in its manufacture in which we do not bear constantly in mind that we are making a roofing which will surely make good under our 15-year guarantee. It must be the finest protection for your building and its contents; it must be so durable that it will effectively resist heat and cold, rain and snow and all other weather conditions.

It must be all of this to justify us in guaranteeing it for fifteen years. It will last longer than that, and it will save you money in every year of its service on your buildings. Certain-teed would have to be higher in cost were it not for our manufacturing facilities, our method of distribution, and our enormous volume.

You can buy Certain-teed Roofing of your local dealer, whom you know. We market it only through the jobber and retailer—not through mail-order houses. Everybody likes to buy things face to face with the seller.

When you buy of your local dealer there is a personal element in the transaction. There is a personal satisfaction. You know the dealer and he knows you. His word is good with you as your word is with him. You know him well enough to know that when he says a thing is right he will make good.

Our Certain-teed label explains our guarantee—fifteen years for three-ply, ten years for two-ply, and five years for one-ply. It protects you, your dealer, and us.

Certain-teed
Quality Cert-i-fied Roofing Durability Genuine-feed

There are many roofing tests—pulling, twisting, tearing, biting—for toughness, tensile strength, pliability, etc.—but they are all false tests. A roof does not have to undergo these things.

Roofs do not wear out—they dry out. Certain-teed is made of the slowest drying materials—a soft center mineral asphalt base, protected by a harder asphalt surface. It's not tough to tear—but it will be on the job, on the roof, long after other roofs have dried up and blown away.

The man does not live who can tell in advance, by looking at, or by any other test, how long a roof will last. But this label tells you how long Certain-teed will last—and the three biggest mills in the roofing industry are responsible for our guarantee.

You can buy roofings for less than the price of Certain-teed. Your saving, however, is but a few dollars at most—and it's poor economy. The price of Certain-teed is always reasonable and it's least expensive in the end. For sale by dealers everywhere.

A Certain-teed Construction Roof for buildings of the most permanent type specified in architects, engineers and builders as well as in owners.
A Certain-teed Construction Roof is a built-up roof and is the most economic method of covering—whether a gable roof or a flat roof with poor drainage.
A Certain-teed Construction Roof does away with the smoky tarpot and no tar or gravel is used. Any dust collect does and the roof is washed clean after every rain. It is a sanitary roof.
Costs more—but worth more. Applied only by responsible roofers.

FATHER DORNEY PASSES AWAY

"Stockyards Priest" Dies in Big Chicago District.

Mission to London Helped Clear Parnell.

He Had "Most Irish Parish Outside of Ireland."

BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.

CHICAGO, March 15.—The Rev. Maurice J. Dorney, a Catholic priest of distinction, died here today. His death was due to paralysis, following his trouble which attacked him a few weeks ago.

The "stock yards priest," Father Dorney had the power for thirty years of the ruler of a notorious municipality—the packing-house city of Chicago. His prestige extended to the White House in Washington on one occasion he earned the gratitude of Celts everywhere as a secret envoy from Irish leaders on both sides of the Atlantic, to Charles Stewart Parnell in London.

What is said to be the most Irish parish outside of Ireland was built by Father Dorney's office charge—St. Columba's, on Forty-fifth street, and by its efforts a white square of territory surrounding his church for many years was free from the presence of a saloon.

Perhaps the meeting of Parnell and Father Dorney in the House of Commons at London will be the single incident to be longest remembered in the civil life of the priest. Father Dorney it was who there delivered the Irish Parliamentary leader documents which showed that the former Pigott's accusations against Parnell were based on forgeries. Pigott charges which formed a desperate attempt to link Parnell with crime upon crime, had thrown suspicion bring about the expulsion of Parnell from the Commons and to cause the wrecking of home rule for Ireland.

Largely as the result of Father Dorney's successful mission the prosecution suddenly collapsed and was not long after committed suicide in Spain. Father Dorney had been entrusted with the documents by his life-long friend, Alexander Sullivan, president of the Irish National League of America, and by Patrick Ford, former treasurer of the Irish National League of Ireland and both of United States Minister to Chile.

TRANSCONTINENTAL RAILROAD

Oakland, Antioch and Eastern Is Now a Party to the Pacific Coast Rate Tariffs.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 15.—It was announced here yesterday that the Oakland, Antioch and Eastern Railway has become a party to all transcontinental freight tariffs in effect between the Pacific coast and points in the United States, including Oakland, Antioch and Eastern. It may thus participate in all rates on freight shipped between all points on the Pacific coast reached by the Southern Pacific company, the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, and the Western Pacific, and their connections for transcontinental business. The road has entered into an agreement to receive and deliver freight shipments from the Pacific coast to the Atlantic seaboard via electric line with the same railroads. It is now obtaining interchange of business between the Pacific coast and transcontinental freight territory. Effective March 15, cover all points in eastern territory of the United States.

One Way to Run a Railroad Is to Quit Steamboating, Declares Justice Lawyers Say.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—The department of Justice in charge of the New Haven case has at their conference received the road's counsel, revived the claim that the New Haven would get rid of its so-called boats if relieved of the dual control of the Federal government. The demand came from the officials of the department directly connected with the suit.

In the bill prepared by Special Assistant Attorney General Thomas C. Adkins, is the charge, for suit under the Sherman law, to be found liens were held by prominent factors in the New England transportation field. The alleged monopoly of the New Haven in land transportation is said to be shown that it can do no less than effect an adjustment of the case before it have attempted to do so in the courts. If the Interstate Commerce Commission decides that the New Haven can lawfully retain the lines, the department says it will be satisfied.

PASSPORTS FOR FLYERS

International Association Formed to Seek Removal of Governmental Restrictions.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, March 15.—In an attempt to remove the restrictions placed upon aviators when they fly from one country to another, Prince Roland Bonaparte, president of the International Aero Federation, has called a meeting to be held in Paris in May, according to an announcement made last night by the Aero Club of America.

All European governments have passed laws against the flying of machines over their borders by visitors since August, President Poincaire issuing over the Panama-Pacific exposition a proclamation imposing a penalty of five years' imprisonment for violations.

The communication from the Paris aero club requests that the United States government send delegates to the international aviation conference, non-military aviation to be discussed, countries upon presenting their passports, to be issued upon request by the countries to be entered.

The International Aero Federation represents [illegible] nations.

THE CITY AND ENVIRONS.

EVENTS BRIEFLY TOLD.

St. Paul's Noonday Services.

During the Lenten season, meetings are being held each day at noon in St. Paul's Pro-Cathedral, beginning at 12:15 and closing at 12:45. Brief talks are made by a different rector each day and the public is invited to attend.

Girls' Night.

Girls' night at the Young Women's Christian Association Wednesday will be preceded by a 10-cent supper, after which there will be gym sports, a meeting with the campfire girls and then a greeting to Frances Taft, a missionary in China, in the auditorium.

Condition Improves.

It was reported at the Sisters' Hospital last evening that the condition of Superior Judge Myers was quite satisfactory, following his operation for appendicitis. Yesterday afternoon he rested well, following an uneasy morning, and is now quite comfortable. It is expected that his recovery will be complete, as he underwent the operation in an admirable manner, rallying immediately.

Irish Patriotism.

"Irish Patriotism" will be the subject of an address to be delivered by Hon. Webster Davis, at the St. Patrick's celebration tomorrow evening at St. Mary's Hall, Fourth and Chicago streets. There will also be a musical selection by the children of St. Mary's School, a reading by Miss Marie McGrath, Irish songs by Miss Katherine Burns Robinson and a piano solo by Miss Lore Cushing.

Rescue Mission Sunday.

Under the leadership of General Superintendent Hadden, the Union Rescue Missions have arranged for the annual celebration of rescue missions Sunday, March 29, at 2 o'clock, p.m., in Temple Auditorium. P. P. Bilhorn, of Chicago, will conduct the great mission chorus and sing several solos. Revs. Shaw, Brougher, Locke and B. F. Pearson will speak briefly upon the work accomplished by the missions. Many of the churches of the city will celebrate the day by having special sermons upon the evangelization of the city with special reference to the "down-and-out" class.

FROM THE BARD'S HOME.

Former Mayor of Stratford-on-Avon Here in Advance of Frank Benson's Festivals.

Archibald Flower, erstwhile Mayor of Stratford-on-Avon and for many years leader of the enthusiasts who have made a reality of a revival of Shakespeare at the town of his birth and throughout Great Britain, spoke yesterday at Cumnock Hall to an audience of admirers of the great bard.

His talk was, in a sense, in preparation for the forthcoming visit here in about a week of Frank R. Benson, dean of English Shakespearean actors and producer of the Stratford festivals, with the Stratford company, on the first foreign tour permitted them by their board of governors.

Flower, who is president of the board of governors of the Stratford movement, was enthusiastically received yesterday by a crowd representative of the best artistic circles here.

Today and tomorrow and during the time before Benson will arrive, he will be very busy speaking at the schools and before clubs, all in the interests of the movement to which he is devoting himself.

Today he will be at the Lincoln High School at 10 a.m., before the Women's City Club at noon, the Ebell Club at 2 o'clock and the Evening City Club at Christopher's at 6 o'clock.

Tomorrow he will be at the Los Angeles High School in the forenoon and the Manual Arts High School at noon.

He is to speak before the Wednesday and Friday Morning clubs and practically all the other leading clubs of the city.

He and his brother, Maj. Flower (retired,) of the Indian army, are being extensively entertained here.

INVESTIGATION TODAY.

Police Oppose Deputy Prosecutors Who Are Charged With Drunkenness and Disorderly Conduct.

A police investigation in which the department will be pitted against the City Prosecutor's office, in a certain sense, will be staged today in Chief of Police Sebastian's office.

C. P. Leonard, a deputy in City Prosecutor McKeehe's office, is alleged to have made excessive use of his tongue while under arrest for being drunk and disorderly, and Patrolmen W. A. Cornwall and T. S. Miller are alleged to have manhandled him.

Leonard, with Lyle Eveland, another deputy in McKeehe's office, and W. S. Wheat, aged 20, and a law student, were arrested near Third and Spring streets early Saturday morning for being noisy and apparently intoxicated. They were warned once by a patrolman officer to stop their noise. Half an hour later, being found in the same place and in the same condition, they were arrested.

Very peevish at their arrest, Leonard is alleged to have used bad language to Patrolmen Cornwall and Miller, while being booked for disturbing the peace.

The climax came when a young man, arrested on suspicion, refused to give his name. Leonard, who was seated on a bench near the desk sergeant's window, jumped up and told the fellow not to disclose his identity, intimating that he, with his legal connections, would be able to assist him. He accompanied the suggestion with abusive language the officers say, whereupon Patrolman Cornwall slapped him with some force upon the face.

The two young deputies have been suspended by the City Prosecutor pending the outcome of today's investigation.

FIRE NEAR CITY HALL.

Blaze Starts in Tailor Shop and Gasoline in Typewriter Company's Office Explodes.

A spectacular downtown fire which attracted many onlookers and threatened for a time to attack the City Hall, destroyed about $500 worth of materials and caused about $500 damage to the building at Nos. 242-46 South Broadway.

The fire started in a tailor shop in the second floor of the building and made its way into the neighboring offices of the Typewriter Inspection Company. Gasoline in the latter office exploded, the flames leaping high as the City Hall tower. The firemen extinguished the flames in less than fifteen minutes.

The three stores on the ground floor of the building are occupied by N. G. Baida, dealer in oriental rugs, whose stock is valued at many thousands of dollars, a quick-sale piano store, and a branch of the California Postcard Company.

The building is owned by C. S. Baker of Riverside. It is now on sale and is scheduled to be razed to the ground on May 1.

NEW NIGHT CHIEF.

Following the promotion of Detective George Home to a confidential position in the office of the Chief of Police, his place in the Detective Bureau at Central Station has been filled, on order of the chief, by Detective Robert McMahan, a young member of the department, who has been connected with the police for less than five years. His new position places him in charge of the detective bureau from midnight until morning.

JEWISH ACTORS ROBBED.

Ed Baker of No. 1033 South Hope street, an amateur actor who took part in a production of the Jewish play, "Esther," at the Gamut Club last night, went home pantless but undaunted, all because a burglar entered several of the dressing-rooms and made away with clothing, jewelry and money. Other victims of the thieves were Charles Levy of No. 910 Boston street and Nathan Brunsweig of No. 912 Temple street. The stuff is valued, approximately, at $150.

A Free Illustrated Lecture This Morning at Ten O'clock by Hon. Wm. E. Smythe.

"Why did God make Southern California?
"Did He make it for the exclusive benefit of idlers?
"Did He make it for the enjoyment of tourists only?
"Did He make it for the home of Speculation, where men should forever reap and never sow?
"Did He say: In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread—except in Southern California?
"I do not believe it. I believe God made Southern California to be the paradise of the common man—the chosen home of those who would work and live in the midst of the most ideal conditions Nature ever devised."
About the sweetest experience in the world is to have as much land as you can comfortably care for without hiring help, with a roof of your own, your fruit trees, garden and poultry, and a chance to specialize on something to be sold for cash direct to the consumer through co-operative marketing system—this, plus sunshine and scenery, plenty of fine neighbors, and a highly organized social life.

CHARACTER IN NEGRO TONGUE.

African Bishop Finds Beauty in Barbaric Languages.

Power, Scope and Expression Equal to English.

Translating Bible to Spread Gospel in Africa.

Elements of greatness on the character of the African negro, attested in many things, but in marked degree by the native languages, were declared in an address delivered before a large audience at the Y.M.C.A. yesterday afternoon, by Bishop J. C. Hartzell, D.D., African bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Of these barbaric tongues he said, in part:

"The languages of the barbaric blacks might replace every one of Europe and America, now in use, and nothing be lost in expressiveness, beauty, power and scope in conveying thought.

"I am now transplating the New Testament into an African tongue, capable of as fine shades of meaning as the Latin."

The address was devoted to "Africa Old and New." Beginning with a retrospection that embraced Egypt and the greatness of the old Nileland; Carthage, the wonderful city of half a million to a million souls; the great, rich, aggressive Roman empire; the coming in of the Mohammedans in the seventh century and the consequent destruction of the in the past few years in actual progress, especially in the field of applied science. For Mohammedans as well as blacks, he saw an outlook the most hopeful.

"In treatment of diseases of plants," he said, "of lower animals and of human beings, in matters of mining and agriculture, the highest results of applied science are being utilized by the nations of Africa.

"All these developments of the continent are only providential records by which multitudinous millions are being made accessible to the gospel of Jesus Christ and the philanthropy and educational advantages of Christian nations."

Bishop Hartzell has been occupied for eighteen years in his present work. For twenty-five years before that, he pursued educational and religious work in the Southern States, among blacks and whites.

In pursuance of this work, he has traveled an average of 35,000 miles a year for forty-three years—a grand total of a million and a half miles. During all this travel, he has never once had an accident.

DRAMATIC JURY AT LARGE.

Investigates Questioned Plays and Will Report Today on One Which Has Been Complained Of.

At last a competent jury has been found to sit in judgment upon the dramatic productions that are more forceful than they are conventional. Those composing this jury are Lee Marden, juvenile officer at the Central Police Station, and his four assistants, Policewomen Gilbert, Hamm, Tarbell and Shatto. They will sit in judgment for the first time today at a play in a downtown theater.

The training by which the jury has reached a condition of education that marks them as competent to judge such matters is the work performed by them daily when twenty-five cases involving the questions of the hour are considered. It is a matter of record in the department that the five jury-people handle twenty-five cases daily in which sex relationship is involved.

When Mrs. Clara Williams, the president of an organization known as "The Mothers' Purity League," informed Chief of Police Sebastian that

Dan Allman, City Cemetery caretaker,

Whose shovel has uncovered many ghastly mysteries in the 500 unidentified graves in the old Fort Hill burying ground, now being removed to make room for the Los Angeles High School athletic field.

greater and more aggressive half of Christendom—after this review of Africa's greatness, he turned his attention to the barbaric blacks and to their possibilities as illustrated in the tongues they speak, the vast number and remarkable character of their languages.

A few of these languages were first reduced to writing by the missionaries. Later, their study was taken up by scientists, for the most part French and German. Now, 130 native languages have been reduced to writing and the Methodist church has established four printing plants for the production of this new literature.

MANY LANGUAGES.

However, this does not cover the possible linguistic field. There are over 800 languages and dialects now spoken in Africa. These have been reduced by scientists to four great families, and one German linguist is of the opinion that they may, in time, be narrowed to but three great families, with common roots and affiliations in inflection and idiom.

When the work of putting all the tongues in writing has been done and the natives taught to read, the bishop declared, the dialects will pass away and the problem cease to be staggering to the student.

All this was stated in illustration of the natural capacity of the Africans in whose future this divine believes.

"The new Africa," he declared, "has been made possible by exploration. Over 400 whites have given their lives in the exploration; in blazing the trails through the unknown reaches of the Dark Continent.

Next, he dealt with the greatness of the colonial empires now being built up there. That of France is one and a half times as large as the entire United States, and that of Great Britain larger than this country.

HOPEFUL OUTLOOK.

His predictions for the future were in part based on what has been done she considered the play in question entirely too frank and fascinating in its theme, she asked that the Chief send someone to attend the show and pass judgment as to whether it was a desirable theatrical attraction.

The Chief informed her he had a competent jury he would send. The members will report today.

PRINCESS' BODY FOUND.

Cliff Dwellers' Tomb Reveals Remains of Member of a Royal Family of Ages Past.

Mrs. Thomas Doran, wife of the proprietor of the Montezuma Hotel in Santa Fe and one of the most versatile women in the New Mexico capital is at the Angelus, accompanied by her friend, Mrs. Lewis D. Fossett of that city.

Aside from being a social leader, Mrs. Doran is an active member of the Santa Fe Woman's Club, a member of the School of American Archeology and a student of politics and sociology.

"As a city, Santa Fe is in a class by itself," Mrs. Doran said. "Only about 1800 of the 8000 population are Americans. The social life among the Americans is very delightful. In tone the city is quaint and more foreign than American.

"Our city is headquarters for students of archeology. The School of American Archeology is located there. Our study of the cliff-dwellers is fascinating. We made the important discovery of the body of a princess in one of the cliff tombs. Her dress and the tomb in which she was buried indicated that she belonged to a royal family. For several months the mummified body was left in the tomb where it was discovered with a watchman on guard. After there had been an attempted to steal the treasure, the body was moved to a safe place in the city."

CLEARING A MYSTERY.

One day Dan was visited by an old Spanish woman who claimed one of the un-named plots as the resting place of her grandfather. She declared that those present at the time of his death said that he had been murdered by Indians and that he had been buried with three arrow heads in his flesh. The hasty burial excited much suspicion among members of the family and because of their inherent hate of the gringoes they believed them to be responsible for the death.

The lady waited patiently during the tedious digging until finally the pitiful heap of bone and decayed wood appeared. Dan tenderly lifted the earthy particles and spread them out before the grand-daughter's eyes. Carefully they sifted every handful of dirt for the arrow heads. Then Dan picked up the skull and pointed to two tiny perforations, opposite each other, plainly the path of a bullet.

It is said that before the advent of Gen. Fremont the hill was a swarming Indian camp and warrior chiefs were the first to be buried in the old cemetery. For years the fort occupied the hill alone until a cemetery became necessary and the site of the old Indian burying grounds was selected.

IN THE CHURCHES YESTERDAY

DR. BROUGHER.
TEMPLE BAPTIST CHURCH.
SERIOUS PICTURES OF GOSSIPS ARE MORE SINFUL THAN ANY OTHER.

Dr. Brougher preached to a great audience at Temple Auditorium on "The Tango Tongue." He took for his text the ninth commandment, "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor." Among other things he said:

"It would be difficult to decide as to which men or women gossip the more. Some men gossip more than do their weaker sisters; some women gossip more than their sensual men. The wild, reckless "tango" tongue is yet to be mastered so far as man is concerned. If the tongue could only be used to elevate, rather than degrade, what a blessing it would be. But the tongue is capable of expressing the lowest, most forms of thought, as well as the highest and holiest. A wild and lawless imagination will use the tongue to do its bidding. When it comes to gossiping, the tongue seems to run at both ends without realizing what it is doing.

"The lazy gossip is a person of very small intellectual caliber. No person can be idle or lose time in that 'abominable little-little' which seeks only the reputation of another. Like the brakes, the less character, the less soul, a man or woman has, the more will he or she be addicted to gossip.

"A lying gossip is a narrow, selfish person. His prejudice blinds him to see the noble traits of character that are in the object of his condemnation. He can see every little fault and magnify it a hundredfold. We need not expect to receive fair treatment from prejudice people, for Jesus Christ did.

"A tattling gossip is a lover of evil things. The things that we talk about are the things that we love. Christians cannot repeat scandal about others without revealing their own corrupt natures. To enjoy talking about the faults and weaknesses of other people shows our innate depravity.

"The horrid gossip is a scandal monger. There is nothing better than to talk of an evil subject, a sneer at it, and then hasten to tell it to those who knows. Every time he tells the story he exaggerates it more and more, until a little lie will become a malicious falsehood, and the one who thus repeats the story becomes as guilty as the one who originated it.

"The lying gossip is usually a hypocrite. It makes one smile to see a piece of coal say to the sunlight: 'I have a spot on you.' Here is a lying gossip slandering the character of everybody and ruining reputations—and in the eyes of God the gossiper is worse than a thief, a liar or a murderer.

"The lying gossip is usually a hateful, spiteful person. Jealousy, envy, and hatred are usually at the bottom of most of the lying gossip. It is contemptible, devilish disposition that is willing to seek to build itself up by pulling down others.

"The lying gossip is an evil-minded, impure-hearted person. I am not a regular gossip yet' that does not impugn the motives of others. If a man or a woman assert certain things are taking place when they have no foundation for it, is simply a revelation of their own corrupt imagination.

"The lying gossip is a spiteful malicious. He would not dare to say to your face what he says behind your back. The gossip usually has no backbone and makes enemies not to tell that he said it.

"The lying gossip usually has an unclean spirit. He never forgets anything. He will drag up every little act of the past to club you with, if he has the chance. I believe the hardest and the outcast have the power of getting into heaven sooner than the unforgiving gossip. Don't talk about your neighbors, and don't listen to gossip about you. Slander is a boomerang, and they will slander you, and you will get it in double measure before you get through."

DR. TILROE.
FIRST CHRISTIANS M. E. CHURCH.
WHY EVERY MAN HAST ANY ONE CAN GET RID OF THAT CHURCH-GOING.

The Pacific Heights Methodist Episcopal Church yesterday the pastor, W. E. Tilroe, D.D., preached on "Church Habit." He said in part:

"Most of us enter nearly everybody has a habit in the church. Easter and Christmas and funerals, and weddings and visiting friends, and the like. Many of the extraordinary occasions of life are the fashionable advertising days in a while. And little there is in it. Incidental to religion. The deliberate habit is to do only as he pleases. He forsakes the church for other things, is the real man. The habit of the latter to the Heavenly Father is to spurts in the manner of some is to forget. Some of some is to forsake the habit of themselves to the habit would have is just the habit of manner. The church is the only thing worth while. The engagements are many. Other things bend in their favor. The wishes of the parents in the home, not the whims of the engineer runs by. Until one has the church habit as a standard that takes the lead ahead of every call in the week, he is unsafe in character, of small use to anybody and is not leading on but getting ready in this world and the world to come.

"The church habit must be a choice. It is a matter of some to forget. Anything we choose determines all other thing. The Christian life was a novelty in the earth when it was starting. It was near the end of the human life of the apostles, the apostles, of the present generation. There is a general readiness, for the average life probably consists of something. Nevertheless there were not few who were and neglectful, even with guarantee goodness chosen. The habit of true Christianity, the habit of daily life, the habit of persecution, none of these small things, so the modern church is not always with the world, the flesh and the devil, not out of business. If the church habit he chooses it to the choice is the value. Especially perhaps the habit of primarily altruism. Not so directly for our own good of others. Not to consider one another. The habit of our thought. We are to know him. There is the habit with him. The habit to love and good with him. Therefore habit him to love with him. The proba-

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.
BIG THINGS ARE DONE BY MEN UNDER LAW, WHOSE DOMINATING PASSION IS LOVE.

Speaking from his pulpit yesterday on "The Law of Life," Dr. Campbell of the First Presbyterian Church said in part:

"The greatest transformations that this world has witnessed have been accomplished by men whose hearts have been held under the sway of that law that works when love is the dominating passion.

"History itself is eloquent with the noble acts and deeds of men who stopped upon the great highway of life and recognized the voice of duty and the voice of conscience urging them onward to do and sometimes to die that they might obey that law which holds right living and high thinking to be the supreme object in life.

"The world would be poor, indeed, if there were not noble hearts that found it to be their highest joy to walk obediently in the way pointed out by duty and conscience and the expressed will of God.

"Witness if you will such noble spirits as those who are known by the name of patriot, prophet and martyr. Such have emphasized the value of righteousness and with these examples of noble manhood standing out before the world, men have gone forth with a zeal and enthusiasm that no amount of hardship could hinder. When men have been actuated by lofty and high purposes to perform duty regardless of danger or persecution there has arisen out of their actions a nobility that is marked not by an aristocracy of birth, but by a nobility that has its rise in a God-like and Christ-like spirit that seeks to help and lift men to a higher plane of living. Fascinating, indeed, is the history of that noble band recorded in the eleventh chapter of Hebrews and whose deeds of love are enumerated for the purpose of showing the type of men that have arisen out of the past, where the inspiration of God's spirit has come upon human hearts."

REV. F. W. BURNHAM.
WILSHIRE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.
CHRIST WILL DO FOR YOU JUST WHAT YOU WOULD THAT HE SHOULD DO.

At the Wilshire boulevard Christian Church Sunday morning the pastor, the Rev. Frederick W. Burnham, preached on "What Would You Have Jesus Do For You?" Mark X:51, "What wilt thou that I should do unto thee?" Jesus's words to blind Bartimaeus. Mr. Burnham said in part:

"It is interesting to find what people expect of Jesus. If He were here and should put this question to you what would be your reply? Would you say 'nothing, Lord, I'm sufficient unto myself, there is nothing I'd have you do for me.' It is doubtful if any man would say that. Let me tell you what I think I would have Him do. Perhaps my answer would voice your need.

"1. There are some things I would have Him teach me. Jesus was the great teacher. How one would like to sit at His feet, like a child, and ask questions. I would have Him teach me about God. Not about God's glory; for the astronomer can teach me that as he reads that glory in the heavens. Not about God's power; for I may learn that from the geologist as we descend the Grand Canyon and he interprets for me the record of God's creative processes. But I would have Jesus teach me about God as Father, so that I might have that fellowship and companionship with God which He had. I would know how I might enter into God's council, receive His guidance and hear His voice. Then I would have Jesus teach me about myself, about the meaning of my life and its struggles, and point me the certain way of peace and poise of strength and success. I would also want Him to teach me about Himself, His wondrous life and mission on the earth, the significance of His death, the coming of His kingdom. How men have pondered these problems.

"2. There are some things I would have Jesus do for me. I would have Him put down in me the taint and power of sin; break the tyranny of evil and replace it with the power of righteousness; work in me that miracle of His transforming grace until all my acts should be God working in me 'both to will and to do of His good pleasure.' Then I would have Him give me a part with Him, even as He with the Father, in the redemption of the world; let me be His helper in saving men.

"3. There are some things I would have Jesus be to me. My friend is more to me than any instruction or advice which he may give, more than any service he may render. Just that he is my friend is more than all else. So I would have Jesus be my changeless friend; know the deepest recesses of my heart and share the utmost reaches of my life. I would have Jesus be with me when I die. That is an event I cannot presage nor comprehend, yet one which I ultimately must meet. I would have Him go with me through that shadow. And, since He is the Eternal Son, I would have Him be my advocate with the Father.

"But now, you will bear witness, when one has said all this, and has touched the deepest needs of the human mind and heart, he has uttered no wish which Jesus has not already pledged Himself to fulfill for those who hear and heed His gospel. All this He will do for you, and more. 'Exceeding abundantly above that we ask or think,' declares the Apostle Paul. What will you let Him do for you?"

PRESIDENT BLAISDELL.
FIRST CONGREGATIONAL.
VALUATION OF YOUTH A WONDERFUL THING, BEGAN WHEN THE MASTER FIRST FAVORED CHILDREN.

At the First Congregational Church yesterday, President James A. Blaisdell of Pomona College, spoke on "The Enlistment of Youth," taking his text from First Epistle of John 2:xiv, "I have written unto you, young man, because ye are strong, and the word of God abideth in you." In part, he said:

"It is one of the old, fundamental facts of the kingdom, of which I am to speak. There are smaller things, but they have no place there. This is the hour for old facts, the eternal facts, the primary facts of life, and in that conception of this hour I have read this verse.

"It has come out of the tactics of the Christian church and it points out one of the fundamental conceptions by which the kingdom of God has gone up its way ever since the time of Jesus Christ. For, with Jesus there came a new insight into the value of youth, a new appreciation of its part in the upward and onward movement of the world's life.

"You will remember that up to the time of Jesus no great philosopher had ever taken the little children upon his knee, and insisted that they were of his nearest kin. You will remember that no great soldier, planning his wars, had ever before insisted that those who were to be his counselors must first of all become child-like. You will remember this Master, who was outlining a programme of world conquest, did the strange thing of calling a flaxen-haired youth, named John, into his discipleship—one who was so young that he was on earth sixty or perhaps seventy years after the Master's work had been finished.

"And then, when this Master came to tell His typical story of enlistment in His kingdom and the life that was like a beam, he chose to tell the story of a young lad who had come too early into the patrimony of his inheritance. And this valuation of youth lay at the center of the general's programme of the conquest of the world. Now, that insight has become the typical strategy of Christian colleges. That valuation which Jesus put upon youth, that insight into its capacities which he discovered—that has been the marching programme of civilization up to this time.

"Said a shrewd-eyed business man to me the other day: 'I have given over all investments save investments in youth. They alone, are worth while. The man of mature life is nearing the end. His mind has become toughened to the new gospel. In youth is our chance.' And this whole discriminating bit of tactics of this shrewd-eyed business man is simply the philosophy of Jesus brought down to date.

"So far has the influence of Jesus gone into our times, who can measure the unseen leavening of Jesus in the world today? All our vast Christian education is simply a testimony of this primary discovery of Jesus—the worth of youth.

"In this land of ours, there are millions of dollars worth of school property, an annual investment of more than half a billion of dollars in the actual carrying on of the school system of our country, an army of teachers going daily to their tasks, a vast organization for the recruiting of youth in knowledge. This is simply the modern testimony of the greatness of Jesus's valuation of youth."

DR. SHAW.
IMMANUEL PRESBYTERIAN.
HOW PETER WAS BLESSED FOR FIRST SEEING IN CHRIST THE REAL MESSIAH.

Dr. John Balcom Shaw of Immanuel Presbyterian Church, in the continuation of his course on "The Eight Enviables, or People Whom Jesus Commended," preached on "Simon Peter, the Granitic," yesterday. He said in part:

"Peter stands out before us as the first great confessor—a distinction the most enviable. It was he who first acknowledged the deity of Jesus, thereby evidencing an insight into our Lord's true nature and registering a degree of faith in Him that had not been reached by any one before him and scarcely exceeded by any one who has succeeded him. It was because of that confession that Jesus commended him. It is therefore of vital concern to us to know what there was in that confession which specially pleased Jesus. To understand its full import one needs to note wherein it differed from the other testimonies given at the same time but, instead of being so much as recognized by Him, Jesus quietly yet effectively discountenanced, if not actually condemned.

"He had just asked the twelve what men generally were thinking and saying about Him, and several replies were at once forthcoming. Some were saying that He must be John the Baptist returned to the earth; others felt that He was Elijah; still others believed Him to be Jeremiah; and there were many who thought Him one of the prophets, though not quite certain which one.

"That this reply did not satisfy Jesus and that he was expecting a personal estimate from His disciples very different from any of these that comes apparent from the question He thereupon immediately put to them and the form in which He cast it. Beginning it with the adversative, He plainly expressed His dissatisfaction with any such estimate as the public was reported as holding, and narrowing the question down to a personal application, he made it emphatically plain that He was expecting far more from His immediate disciples. 'But whom say ye that I am?' is the direct inquiry that follows. In contrast with this, Peter replies with characteristic frankness and emphasis: 'Thou are the Christ, the Son of the Living God,' which was saying nothing less than this: 'Others may classify you as a human prophet like Elijah or Jeremiah, or a great reformer like John the Baptist, but to me, Lord, you are far more than that. I believe You to be the Messiah, for whom the world has been looking and therefore by preeminence the Son of God.'

"If that does not confess a definite personal faith in Christ's divinity and a divinity different from that which marked all others, even though as great as Elijah or Jeremiah, then language must be incapable of accurately expressing an idea. Beyond question Jesus pronounced Peter blessed because he had a true appreciation of his Master's nature and was honest enough to declare it.

"And what makes Christ's commendation of Peter forever notable and gives it practical interest for us is the declaration which Jesus immediately appended, namely, that on that confession as a rock foundation He would build His church and build it so securely that even the gates of hell would be powerless to so much as shake it. In saying this Jesus described the true church and named the primal condition of membership therein. It was to be made up solely of those who believed in and confessed His divinity, and all that so believed and confessed, and only they, were entitled to its seal and sanction. Has not history openly and abundantly verified that declaration? All but one out of every 250 who today profess to be Christians worship Jesus as Lord, and those who do so show great progress and strength, while others who deny His divinity are gradually lessening in numbers and control, indicating that those are still blessed beyond all others who preserve Peter's faith and join him in his Christ-commended confession."

WEST ADAMS M. E. CHURCH.
SWEARING IS SCAMP'S WAY OF PUTTING A PROP UNDER A WEAK LIE.

"Why Should Jones Stop Swearing?" was the subject of the sermon of W. L. Y. Davis in the West Adams Methodist Episcopal Church yesterday. He said, among other things:

"'It is a damned hot day!' That is what I heard a man say on my way to church this morning." This was the way Henry Ward Beecher began a sermon, and then went on and preached against profanity.

"Much swearing is of a kind. It has no meaning. It is just a habit.

"A man has no more right to pour his profanity into my ears than he has to stand upon my toes. My ears are mine as well as my toes. He has no more right to choke the air with oaths than he has to load the air with polluting smells.

"Swearing is a scamp's attempt to use God's name to prop up a lie. Cuss words are the stuff men try to fill up the cracks in their statements with. The man who will swear will generally lie. Swearing is the veneer of lying!

"Some nincompoops swear to show they are men! And it is pathetic to rob them of their only claim to manhood. It always takes an anaemic, red-eyed, yellow-fingered youth to do the best job of swearing. He does it to show he is a man. He has no other prominent signs.

"He rolls up his pants to the knees, sticks his hands into the pockets his father paid for, swaggers down street, rolls a cigarette, flunks and swears—to show he is a man! He hardly makes good stuffing for rat holes. You need sand at least to pound into rat holes.

"Profanity and tobacco generally ooze from the same mouth. And it is a marvel how some swear words do get past some wads of tobacco! Nearsports! They are not even good sports!! He thinks he has to hit a cuspidor three yards away to prove that he is a man. The fellow with a head like a knitting needle has to take the name of the Creator in vain to show that he is a man!

"I am not advocating being a sissy. It takes a man to fight dirty things. Some fellows need to be sent back to the factory to be overhauled. The very freedom of America seems to breed irreverence. It is an American sin. And in the greater room of the great West, we are in danger of becoming freedom-mad! Some are in danger of going up and slapping God on the back and calling Him a 'good fellow.'

"We need reverence. The man who does not reverence God will not reverence his father, nor his mother, nor his teacher! He will not reverence law. He will not reverence human life! You let my ideals alone—and the ideals of my children! I would as soon have you throw mud into my face as into the face of one of my ideals. Reverence is basic in religion. Else, where will you plant your ladder to the skies If you do not intend to be good, at least let the good man's god alone!"

REV. B. H. WILSON.
HIGHLAND PARK CHURCH.
NATURE'S LAW OF REQUITAL IS CONSTANTLY HELD OVER OUR HEADS THROUGH LIFE.

At the Highland Park Church yesterday, Rev. B. H. Wilson preached on "The Law of Requital," finding his text in Judges 1:7. He said in part:

"We have in our text the incident of an ancient king reading with his own conscience his crimes in their punishment. When treated with the horrid cruelty of losing his thumbs and great toes, Adonibezek acknowledged his punishment to be just, for he had upon his conscience the like suffering of seventy kings from his cruel knife. In this short and simple story of ancient times, lies philosophy that eternally pervades all human action and colors all human life and destiny. Nature continually holds over our heads her immutable law of requital. It is thundered from Sinai and spoken with the gentle voice of authority from Mt. Hattan.

"'With what measure you mete, it shall be measured to you again.' The echoes of our own voice must go ringing through the corridors of our own souls. Nature cuts off all escape from ultimate requital. The harvest must eventually come. 'Be not deceived, God is not mocked for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap.' Human life may appear to be confused, but before Almighty God it has shape, plan and purpose. The law of equity is equally effective on both sides. Every good deed will be honored with appropriate reward. The cup of cold water lovingly given bears its high rate of interest, and is a safe investment. 'He which soweth sparingly shall also reap sparingly and he which soweth bountifully shall also reap bountifully. Justice may be long delayed, yet it will be eventually vindicated.

"Unbelief, debauchery and bloody revolution followed France since she decided to rule the Bible out of her national life.

"If we fail to give the youth of America religious instruction, we must expect to reap our annual crop of juvenile crimes and to have our country blighted with anarchy and bloodthirsty mobs. The curse of slavery had its Civil War. Spain reaped awful humiliation from years of oppression in Cuba. Intemperance will lead our land into her dark Gethsemene. It has been the law of all the past and will never change. Sow the dance and reap the harlot; sow cards and reap gamblers; sow saloons and reap drunkards. The home, the individual, or the nation that sows indifference to this will sooner or later reap their share of an awful sorrow. Adonibezek had run a long course of wickedness, seventy kings had suffered under his cruel knife, it seemed that all the power had been given into his hands and justice forgotten. Finally came the grip of the law. The time of requital is at hand."

REV. WILLIAM SPURGEON.
CALVARY BAPTIST CHURCH.
LOVE HAS WON AND STILL IS WINNING ALL UP AND DOWN THE LINE.

Rev. William Spurgeon of London preached yesterday at Calvary Baptist Church for Pastor W. Leon Tucker. The text was: "I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me." He said in part:

"What the sun is to the world, Christ is to men. These optimistic words cheer us in our work. The text has the right ring about it. The outlook was not bright and the Jews could not understand how a crucified one could found a great kingdom; was not death a defeat? But Christ saw beyond the cross, to the morning of resurrection. The pouring out of the spirit and the world won for God.

"How is this to be done? Not by might and power, but love, the greatest aspect in the world. It is heaven born, and here we see but a drop from the ocean, a spark from the fire, a ray from the sun, but love has won and is still winning all along the line.

"It is greater than money, for money could not ease the burdened soul or help in the hour of death. You do not reach God in money, but love. It is greater than pleasure. The one will pass and leave no satisfaction, the other will abide.

Christ came to destroy the works of the devil and he will do it. Love is conquering. Christ is the one and only cure for this and men needs this at the end of the sermon. Mr. Spurgeon showed that the enemies of Christ did more than they intended, that the outcome of Christ's uplifting would be the salvation of men and that victory final and complete would reward the Son of God for the great sacrifice of the cross."

Dr. Spurgeon is a cousin of the famous Rev. C. H. Spurgeon of London, and is a teacher in the Spurgeon College, London, Eng.

REV. C. C. SELECMAN.
TRINITY METHODIST CHURCH.
WITH WANT AND SOCIETY WASTE, THE CITY IS A CHALLENGE TO THE CHURCH.

The subject of Charles C. Selecman, pastor of the Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, South, for Sunday morning was the "Call of the World." Taking for his text the last words spoken by Jesus before His ascension, the pastor emphasized the world-wide mission of the Christian religion. He continued:

"Jesus told His disciples that they should begin at Jerusalem. This presents to us the problem of the city. Jerusalem was the first city to challenge the missionary zeal of the early church. The city with its extremes of wealth and poverty; its industrial problems; its political corruption; its congested population. With want at one extreme and society and waste at the other, the city is a standing challenge to the church and the efforts of right. But the Master called attention, also to Judea. Here we face the problem of the rural church and the country school and the farmer's fireside. But for the products of the country our cities would wither and die. It is the rich, red blood from the country that is being daily injected into the veins of our city life that saves us from miserable stagnation and moral decay. Your leading lawyers, doctors, merchants and ministers in the city were country born.

"While the 'back to the farm' movement may not succeed on a large scale, it will yet remain true for many decades that the brain and brawn of our city life will hale from the farm; therefore, the church must not relent in her efforts to evangelize the rural sections of our great country. But the Master did not pause even here.

"Samaria, too, must be invaded by the missionaries of the cross. The Samaritan people were cordially hated by the Jews; great chasms of prejudice must be bridged and such differences must be forgotten in the onward march of His kingdom. And still the Master refuses to pause—'unto the uttermost parts of the earth' is His command. There is no place to stop so long as a single people have not heard the story or a single home lies in darkness and superstition. Jesus is the world's great Imperialist."

REV. W. O. FISHER.
HARVARD HEIGHTS CHURCH.
REWARD OF GIVING IS MEASURED BY CHRIST AND THE LAW OF TITHES IS MADE ABSOLUTE.

Rev. W. O. Fisher preached on "Christian Giving" yesterday morning at the Harvard Heights United Presbyterian Church. Taking as his text II Corinthians ix:6-7, he said in part:

"The subject of giving is as old as the race. In the first human family Cain brought of the first fruits of the soil an offering unto the Lord; and Abel presented of the firstlings of his flocks an oblation to the Almighty. In the old dispensation emphasis was laid on this subject. The Jews were expected to give the tithe, and more, Malachai chides the people when they neglect the Lord's offerings, accusing them of robbing God. In the New Testament the subject is given large place. The Master speaks freely and forcefully. Liberality He enjoins. Its reward He insures.

"In our text Paul gives us two things. First, the law of giving: 'He that soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he that soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully.' The scene is drawn from the realm of agriculture. He throws upon the canvas a sowing scene. Two sowers go forth. The one sows broadcast; but alas! only a peck where he should sow a bushel. The other sows generously—two bushels of golden grain to the acre. Then Paul throws upon the canvas a harvest scene. Two reapers go forth to reap. One thrusts in his sickle; the grain is too thin. The other reaps an abundant harvest. The reaping is in proportion to the sowing; and no one calls in question the justice of this law which God has written in all nature. It is true in the realm of grace as well. I believe one's reaping will be in proportion to his sowing. The liberal soul shall be made fat, and he that watereth shall be watered also himself.'

"Second, Paul shows the spirit in which the gift is to be presented. Negatively: 'not grudgingly, or of necessity;' positively, 'with cheerfulness.' The apostle's language is very vivid. The word translated 'grudgingly' is literally 'out of sorrow;' the word translated 'cheerful' (hailaron,) is our English 'hilarious.' It is possible for one to give with the hand and withhold with the heart. I would rather have a gift worth 25 cents with the donor's heart in it, than a check for a thousand pounds given grudgingly. I wonder if we ever dedicate our gifts to God with sorrow. How does God feel in accepting such gift Paul says, in substance: 'The act of giving is too magnanimous to be joined to an unlovely spirit. Give cheerfully, and become the object of God's love.'"

REV. J. M. BARNHART.
UNION-AVENUE M. E. CHURCH.
CONTEST BETWEEN SCIENCE AND RELIGION FOUNDED ON MISTAKES AND HYPOTHESES.

"A Modern View of the Bible" was the subject of a sermon preached yesterday by Rev. John M. Barnhart, pastor of the Union-avenue Methodist Episcopal Church. In part he said:

"The Bible is a religious text-book. It is the outgrowth, under the tuition of the Holy Spirit, of the religious experiences of men. The cure for sin is its theme. Its object is to reveal the nature of God, and His plans and purposes for the world's redemption.

"The Bible is a collection of religious writings so profound in thought, so rich in imagery and diversified in the material used to impart and illustrate religious truth, that it has been regarded as a complete and infallible source of information upon every subject of human knowledge. In consequence theologians have appealed to it in controveries relating to natural science, history, philosophy, metaphysics and social theories.

"For hundreds of years theologians appealed to the scriptures to prove the Ptolemaic system of astronomy.

"At present there are those who would appeal to scripture to prove the main contentions of the geologist and evolutionist false. The supposed conflict between science and religion is nothing more nor less than a conflict between the mistaken views of theologians on the one hand and the hypotheses of science on the other. The scientific theologian instead of twisting facts to fit his dogmas changes his dogmas to fit the facts.

"When we realize that the Bible writings have a religious purpose only we are prepared to see that Bible authority rests upon the intrinsic value of the writings. This truth may be illustrated by the dialogues of Plato, which will be read as long as thought can be transmitted by means of language. It is not the world's reverence for a pagan philosopher, however, which makes his writings live; it is the intrinsic value of his works that make his name immortal."

REV. W. J. BURTSCHER.
BETHEL M. E., SOUTH.
TREASURES OF GOD BURIED IN HUMAN FIELDS SHOULD BE SOUGHT DILIGENTLY.

"Treasurer of the Kingdom" was the subject of Rev. William J. Burtscher, pastor of the Bethel Methodist Episcopal Church, South, last night. The scripture from which he selected his theme is:

"The kingdom of heaven is like unto treasure hid in a field; the which when a man hath found, he hideth, and for joy thereof goeth and selleth all that he hath, and buyeth that field."

He said in part:

"A treasure may be anything that contains riches in abundance, and has lasting qualities. It may be a pearl of great price that we can carry with us, or it may be a gold mine that is stationary. A hidden treasure is of no use until it is found, and may never be found if not sought. The Kingdom of God, being like a treasure that is hid in a field, is also made up of treasures that are hid in various fields.

"The treasure of knowledge is hid in a field called education, or college. A man must spend four or more years in that field searching diligently for this treasure to find it. Some explore the field, but never find the treasure, after all.

"The treasure of harmony is hid in a field called music. A man must work hard in that field for a long time before he really finds this wonderful treasure. 'Do you play a fiddle?' a man was asked. 'I don't know,' he answered, 'I've never tried it.' When he did try it his friends begged him to desist. The treasure was hid in that very instrument, however, and only a few have found it.

"The treasure of things to eat is hid in a field called agriculture. The farmer must hunt for this treasure with his plow and hoe, for it is indeed hid in the earth. The more scientifically, the more efficiently, the more earnestly he hunts for this treasure, the more he finds of it.

"The treasure of spiritual things is hid in a field called the church. A man may go to church regularly for years and never notice it, however, for it is hid there, and must be sought.

"In this parable a man came along and found the treasure hid in the field. Thank God for the men in all ages who have come along and found the treasures and handed them down to us.

"Along came a man by the name of Columbus and found the treasure of a new world—and we are living in it.

"Along came a man by the name of Franklin and discovered the treasure of electricity in the clouds, and we are riding street cars, and turning night into day.

"Along came a man by the name of Newton, who found the treasure of gravitation under an apple tree—and we understand a little more about the universe.

"Along came a man by the name of Wright and found the treasure of flying like birds, and we are about to solve the problem of the perfect locomotion.

"Along came a man by your name—and what is he finding? Are you finding the treasure of wisdom that is hid in your brain? We are told that the fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. The man who hasn't learned that is on the other side of the beginning of wisdom. He hasn't found this treasure, no matter how smart he thinks he is. Have you found the treasure of wealth that is hid in your hands? What can you do? Are you finding the treasure of harmony that is hid in your everyday life? Anger, fretting, complaining, and the like, are discords that interfere with life's harmony. This is a treasure that must be sought after with much concern. Have you found the treasure of peace with God that is hid in your soul? Seek these treasures and you shall find them."

CHILD-LIFE PORTRAYED.

Camera Club's Exposition of Photographs of Youthful Angelenos in Blanchard Art Gallery.

A collection of 400 photographs of Southern California child life, made by the members of the Los Angeles Camera Club for the use of the Child Welfare Department of the San Diego exposition, will be on view at the art gallery in the Blanchard building for three weeks, beginning this morning. The gallery will be open today from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and thereafter from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily. The admission is free.

Only the happy aspects of childhood are shown in the pictures. There is no suggestion of suffering or misfortune.

The pictures are classified under these headings: Home portraiture, posed and unposed; child life at the beaches; children and their pets; children, flowers and gardens; nature studies; children with playthings; children in playgrounds; genre of children; special accomplishments, and children in folklore.

The members of the club were given a private view of the pictures yesterday afternoon. The Ruskin Art League will visit the gallery Wednesday morning.

Jesse H. Buffum, director of the Child Welfare Department of the exposition will exhibit the collection on an extensive tour through the United States and England as a special message from Southern California and an invitation to visit the exposition.

"The pictures show Southern California's leading product," Buffum said yesterday, "and we feel assured that they will be of general interest. The pictures were made in the last two months and especially for this collection and, therefore, are new."

The camera club has headquarters at No. 321 South Hill street. George J. Smith is president of the organization and T. K. Adlard, secretary.

CENSORING SERMONS.

An Alderman in Minneapolis suggests it. Perhaps the churches would not mind. They have done all they could to keep down the heretics, but a fresh crop is always on hand. The statesman who recommends this radical measure thinks that some preachers talk too much about sex. Perhaps he will be good enough to offer us a carefully expurgated edition of life.

RICHARD REALF.

We have no reason for introducing him at this time nor any apology for it. He was born in England in 1834, came to the United States in 1856, and lived and wrote poetry pretty much all over North America until he committed suicide at Oakland in 1878. He farmed in Kansas, starved in New York, taught a negro school in South Carolina, wrote newspaper editorials in Pittsburgh, enlisted for the Civil War from Chicago, and did magazine work in San Francisco. He was always sick, always embroiled in domestic difficulties and always miserable, but his heart kept singing and so did his pen, and he came so near being a great poet in the end that one hardly knows where to class him to this day. Perhaps nothing he did gives a better glimpse of his broad vision than a poem called "Symbolisms." Somewhere in it he says:

"All shapes and sounds have something which is not
Of them; a spirit broods amid the grass;
Vague outlines of the Everlasting Thought
Lie in the melting shadows as they pass;
The touch of an eternal Presence thrills
The fringes of the sunsets and the hills."

In the same verse, in which he is touching nature, he exclaims:

"O Earth, thou hast not any wind that blows
Which is not music; every weed of thine,
Pressed rightly, flows in aromatic wine."

The outset of the poem has an immense sweep. It begins:

"All round us lie the awful sacredness
Of babes and cradles, graves and hoary hairs."

The poem ends with the admonition that men keep:

"Clean channels for the instincts which respond
To the Unutterable Sanctities that sweep
Down the far reaches of the strange Beyond,
Whose mystery strikes the spirit into fever
And haunts and hurts and blesses us forever."

AROUND THE UNITED STATES BY WATER.

For travelers who are not in haste, and who prefer the luxury, ease and quiet, and opportunities for pedestrian exercise of steamship and steamboat and canal boat travel to the rattle, bang and jolting of a railway train, and for shippers to whom lessened freight rates are of greater consequence than time deliveries, the construction of new waterways and the renaissance of canal boat and river transportation will be hailed with satisfaction.

When the Panama Canal shall be open for business it will be possible, during eight months of the year, to make a round trip from San Pedro to Chicago and return all the way by water. From here to New York by ocean steamer, from New York to Albany by river steamer on the Hudson, from Albany to Buffalo by canal packet, from Buffalo to Chicago by lake steamer, from Chicago to the Mississippi River by canal, thence down the river by steamboat to New Orleans, thence by ocean steamer via the Panama Canal to San Pedro.

"With the expenditure of not more than $35,000,000," says an eastern exchange, "Chicago could be provided with a comprehensive waterway system connecting the great lakes with the Mississippi River. This would involve only the improvement of some of the existing canals and rivers."

Few persons realise how well supplied Chicago is with water transportation facilities. Extending from the lake at Chicago is the drainage and ship canal built in 1900 at a cost of $55,000,000, and providing a channel twenty-two feet deep and 158 feet wide at the bottom, and running to Lockport on the Illinois River. Second, there is the old Illinois and Michigan canal, built at a cost of about $9,000,000 in 1848, extending from the lake at Chicago, paralleling the drainage canal, and running to La Salle; this is ninety-six miles long, with a bottom width of forty feet and a depth of six feet. Third, there is the Hennepin canal, built by the United States government and completed in 1907 at a cost of $7,500,000; it runs from Hennepin on the Illinois River, across the northern part of the State to Davenport on the Mississippi, and is seventy-five miles long, seven feet deep, and fifty-two feet wide at the bottom. Fourth, the United States government maintains a six-foot depth in the Illinois River from Grafton, where it empties into the Mississippi, to La Salle, a distance of 228 miles. Fifth, the United States is improving the Mississippi River to provide a minimum depth of six feet from St. Louis to Minneapolis and St. Paul.

These waterways are open now, so that the round trip from San Pedro to Chicago and return by water can be made. When the Newlands bill, to the passage of which all parties are substantially pledged, shall become a law the channel of the Mississippi River will be deepened and all obstacles to navigation removed from St. Paul to the Gulf of Mexico.

THE COLLECTION OF DEBTS AND CONFISCATION OF PROPERTY.

Ever since the days of the Sand Lots the tendency of the lawmakers and law expounders of California has been to make difficult the collection of debts and to render easy the evasion of obligations. The writer heard one of the foremost lawyers of the State declare that the giving of credit is attended with more risk in California than in any State in the Union. We do not believe that such is a desirable reputation for a State to have; but under the influence of so-called "Progressive" politics and politicians new difficulties and burdens have been heaped upon the creditor, and the collection of debts has been surrounded with new hazards. It is a part of the catering to the legions of the unthrifty (who have so many votes) and akin to the raids on capital which are going on in Congress and in State Legislatures all over the country. For three or four years the demagogue has been in the saddle and has enjoyed leading the hosts of the unthinking and the undeserving in reckless attacks on industry and thrift. According to these marshals of the dissatisfied the public enemy most to be hated and punished is the man who has accumulated capital through hard work, self-denial and good management. The average newspaper writer seems to think that a fellow who clings to what he has got and is disposed to insist that those who have borrowed money of him pay it back is a "shark," a "blood sucker" and a "vampire"—and that the only worthy and meritorious citizen is he who has spent everything as he went along and consequently never got ahead.

The Times has for lo, these many years, been cautioning its readers that these raids upon investors and creditors, and this craze for public interference in private business, would produce disastrous results. It has been bold enough to enunciate the shocking doctrines that a captain of industry was not necessarily an "undesirable citizen;" and that because a man, woman or child happened to be a bondholder or a stockholder or a noteholder, or belonged to the creditor class, he or she perhaps did not deserve to be looked upon as a criminal whose possessions should be confiscated. For venturing to make such suggestions The Times has been denounced as a "reactionary"—what an awful epithet—and has been told that it was disliked by large numbers of people.

But we in America are beginning to get the effects of this long-continued war upon investors and leaders of enterprise. We see railroads going under, mills shutting down, proposed undertakings dropped and extensions abandoned—with the consequent shrinkage of the pay roll, depression in values, curtailment of trade and commerce. The promoters of the "Progressive" propaganda apparently thought that men of great brains, great energy and great command of capital would keep right on investing and building and expanding and doing big things if they were assured that they were to be hounded and persecuted and crippled and robbed and to have their property confiscated by Legislatures and City Councils. Come to think of it, is it not strange beyond all comprehension that the big men who have conceived and executed the great enterprises for the development of this country have lost heart and checked their operations, in view of the mood of ruinous hostility in which they find a poisoned public mind? Can any one understand why investors refrain from investing when they see the ax of confiscation poised over their heads? How can large-brained, astute men be such ninnies as to hold back from new undertakings when they know that laws are to be passed upsetting their plans, interfering with their operations, cutting their rates in two, and destroying all possibility of profits?

But, incredible as it may seem, this is just what has happened; it is just what The Times has said would happen—and it has come. The principal sufferers are the wage-earners and the men of small means, the men who have bought homes on the installment plan and now can't keep up their installments, the men who have little pieces of real estate to sell and can find no customers. Does it begin to dawn upon the victims of the "Progressive" bosses that the raid on capital was, after all, a raid on the employees of and workers for capital? That the assault on investors was rather an assault on wage-earners? That the vicious attack on the organizers of work was an insidious warfare against those who want work? DO YOU SEE IT NOW, YOU PEOPLE TO WHOM THE TIMES TOLD IT IN SO MANY SCORES AND HUNDREDS OF EARNEST APPEALS?

And this tendency to make the collection of debts more difficult—how is that going to operate? The Times will tell you. IT WILL OPERATE AGAINST THE DEBTOR; IT WILL OPERATE AGAINST THE BORROWER. Don't worry about the creditor! He can take care of himself; he need not loan money nor give credit if he does not choose; he knows how to protect himself, whatever he does. But every risk added to the collection of debt makes it harder for a man to borrow. The more difficult the collection the more exacting the terms. It must work out in that way. The high rate charged for petty loans on personal property is due to the very great risk involved in loaning on such property—so many of these borrowers being foolish borrowers or those absolutely deficient in intention to make good. The more laws that are passed to help these dishonest or irresponsible borrowers to evade their obligations, the harder it will be for those well-meaning and conscientious men and women who really need to borrow or seek credit and intend to pay. The honest borrower must pay for the scamp, as creditors must even things up or stop being creditors and become bankrupts.

It is best for the debtor, it is best for the creditor, it is best for everybody when there is no doubt about contracts; when there is not shakiness about obligations; when debts are promptly paid and collections are easily made. He who would deny this proposition must be destitute of experience in the world's affairs. We have good times when the conditions above described prevail; we have bad and troublous times when credits are insecure and everybody is worrying for fear that his wages, his note due, his bill collectable, his coupon or his contractual claim will not be paid. AND THE MAN WHO WORRIES ABOUT HIS WAGES SUFFERS WORST.

The Times is aware that it is perhaps of little use to say these things now; but it must do its duty and point out these fundamental truths once more—being well aware that the hour is not far distant when many who are now blind will see—and feel! They will realize, after eating the bitter bread, that conditions making for the safety of investments are better for all of us, rich or poor; that fair play for the creator and distributor of work is the best play for those who need work; that interruption and destruction of private business by politicians is bad in the end for the politicians themselves; that legislation against any one class of people, or exempting any one class of people from what applies to others, must undermine the general prosperity and safety in the long run, and that yielding to the clamor for the confiscation of corporate property and the mulcting of the creditor classes is not in the end the best way to secure and retain the good will (or the votes) of the great masses of the plain people.

THE NATIONAL WATER PROBLEM.

Senator Wesley J. Jones of Washington has made a remarkable speech in the Senate in behalf of the passage of a bill which he introduced for the utilization of the hydro-electric power of unnavigable streams. It was a remarkable speech in that it advocated the passage of a law to enable Congress to do indirectly what the Constitution of the United States and the decisions of the Federal Supreme Court forbid it from doing directly.

It is law so well settled that it would be profitless to discuss it, that it is in the power of the Federal government to absolutely control the waters of navigable streams for the purposes of navigation only. It may prohibit any diversion of water therefrom, or any dam or other work thereon that may interfere with the navigation thereof. If, as in the case of the Connecticut River dam, the Secretary of the Interior decides that an addition to the height of the dam will not interfere with the navigation of the stream he may grant a permit for such erection. But he has no right as a condition of such permit to exact a royalty from the company constructing the dam on their receipts from the sale of power, for the reason that for all purposes except that of navigation the waters of all navigable streams—and of unnavigable streams for all purposes—are the property of the State through which the waters run. The State may regulate the prices to be charged by power companies for the sale of hydro-electric power, or it may inflict a tax in the shape of a royalty upon them, but over the waters of unnavigable streams the United States has no more jurisdiction than it has over the price of apples or of wheat.

Senator Jones asserts that under the present laws, which afford insufficient security to investors, 200,000,000-horse power is going to waste. He proposes to issue fifty-year grants on water-power sites to municipalities, States or public service corporations only, the grantee to pay to the government annually a tax of 5 per cent. of the value of the site, the government reserving the right to purchase the plant at the termination of the grant at a fair valuation, the State and nation to supervise rates and service in the meantime.

"Millions of horse power could be made available," said the Senator, "if capital could be assured of a definite term of undisturbed investment and a reasonable return." But capital will not go for under the present law, he says, which gives the Secretary of the Interior authority to subject the grant to such stipulation as he sees fit, and make it revocable at will without indemnity. Nor is it right to provide that the entire property shall revert to the government at the expiration of the term without compensation, the Senator believes.

The Senator mixes up things a little in his speech. The States may possibly grant to power-site companies the right to use the water of unnavigable streams for the purpose of manufacturing hydro-electric power, but the Federal government has not and never had such power. Where the Federal government is the owner of the land on the banks of an unnavigable stream it may, being empowered thereto by proper authorization, reserve the land from sale to settlers or others, except at a price based upon its value as a water-power site. But when the United States parts with the ownership of the land it parts with its riparian proprietorship, and has no longer any control over or any terms to impose upon the use of the water flowing through the land for any purpose. The State has the right to regulate by general law the rates which shall be charged for hydro-electric power, but the United States has no interest in the matter that needs to be consulted.

The same rule prevails with respect to land on navigable streams. The United States has the right to prevent the construction of any work that will obstruct navigation, but this is a right which it may exercise, but cannot sell or lease or give away.

Under the Jones bill a grant of public land which contains a water power site is to be made only to a State, a municipality or a public service corporation. Plans for the same "must be approved by the Secretary of the Interior. The fair market value of the public land to be used is ascertained and the grantee required to pay annually 5 per cent. of that value. At the expiration of the term of grant—fifty years—the plant may be taken over by the Federal government, the State or the municipality upon payment of a fair value of the property excluding value of the land.

Where the Federal government is not the owner of the banks of an unnavigable stream it has no voice in the management of any water-power plant erected thereon. Only the State has the power of regulation. Where the Federal government is not the owner of land on the banks of a navigable stream it has no control over the erection of water-power plants thereon unless such erection would interfere with navigation. The State, however, has the same right of control as in the case of non-navigable waters.

With this right of State regulation reserved it does not appear to The Times that there is any dire necessity of legislation authorizing the Federal government to withhold public lands from sale or raise the price or the terms of acquisition of them, because the streams flowing through them contain power that may be utilized. Flowing water conserved for the use of future generations is force wasted and spilled into the air. Use is conservation. Non-use is waste.

THE REPROACHFUL ATTITUDE.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

It's quite the most exasperating thing to encounter. And it never does any good. The reproachful attitude generally has the effect of making you wish to deserve it—so much reproach going to waste seems sinful.

Some people deliberately cultivate it in all their dealings. Every last one of us knows the reproachful friend and acquaintance—the sort of people who invariably greet one with:

"You don't love me any more. You never come to see me now."

Whereupon your entirely passive indifference to the speaker leaps into active dislike. How dare they insinuate that you ever did love them, for one thing, and by what right do they suggest that you were neglecting a duty in not going to see them?

It is the sort of remark nicely calculated to put you in the wrong; to make you explain, apologize, regret; to place you under a wholly unwarranted obligation.

They are the same people whose correspondence generally commences with:

"I suppose you are never going to write to me any more . . . of course I am only an ordinary person, not interesting like . . . . or rich like . . ."

And if you are a normal human being, indignant resentment promptly stirs within you. And from being one of the "ordinary persons" toward whom you were kindly, if passively, disposed, they stand out in heavy relief as tiresome creatures, henceforth to be avoided.

Such persons reek of the most insidious and spurious form of humility, their everlasting attitude of reproach suggesting that you ought to have loved them, ought to have called upon them, ought to have written to them, ought to have given them an important place in your life had you not been thoroughly selfish, reprehensibly remiss in your social duties.

This reproachful attitude must be the basis of many a spoilt life. Even when it is deserved the whining reproach can never make things better. In fact, it is usually the cause thereof. The reproachful wife, the reproachful husband, the reproachful friend, the reproachful mother, the reproachful teacher, the reproachful employer can never inspire love or loyalty.

They are type of persons that make up the naggers, the peevish whiners, the everlasting complainers. If they have a right to criticise one's actions it merely makes one's resentment the greater, because escape from them is so much more difficult.

We all know wives and mothers, husbands and father, who are forever complaining with that exasperating air of reproach, and the burden of their cry is always that their relatives do not treat them with proper consideration. It does not seem to occur to them that love is for the lovable, consideration for the considerate. They go out of their way to make one feel as uncomfortable and as unhappy as they very well can, and then complain that nobody loves them.

The reproachful whiners generally have good cause for their whines. We certainly don't love them any more and we certainly don't go to see them more often than we can possibly help. The only thing is that they confuse cause and effect, they blame us instead of themselves.

It seems such a little thing, this attitude of reproach, yet it is harder to bear than much more heinous offenses. It is utterly blighting to all our generous impulses, our sympathetic emotions, our very ambitions—a damp, clammy, depressing fog in which the only emotion possible is one of irritated disgust.

We all of us have a select few for whom we would do anything in the world, go to any trouble, make any sacrifice—but there isn't a reproachful whiner among them. Not one. The objects of our love may be wholly faulty in a hundred other ways—we can bear most things but chronic reproach.

The attitude of mind of the reproachful ones is difficult to understand. Do they honestly expect to win our affection and attention that way? They are a complex mixture of intense egotism and groveling humility. They can't have an ounce of self-respect or proper pride in their make-up, yet they are hopelessly self-centered.

Personally I am altogether too conceited to reproach my friends for neglect. I could never be brought to believe that they had wilfully neglected me. I should know at once that only other more urgent affairs had kept them from communicating with me. On the one or two rare occasions when the conviction has been forced upon me that they really don't want my society I have been overwhelmed with amazement—but I left it at that. I should never expect to win them back with reproaches.

One is sometimes conscious of regret in such cases, and reviews one's own past conduct to discover the cause. The cause is generally there. In which case reproaches are superfluous. If it isn't there, then we may as well accept the fact that we are uncongenial to that particular person. All the whining in the world won't make the slightest difference. If we really find that life without the affection of that special person is hopeless our only chance is in making ourselves more likable. It is pretty obvious that we are not very attractive as we are.

I was deeply impressed with a mother-in-law episode recently. The mother-in-lake joke is one of the tragedies of the world. She was complaining bitterly about her son-in-law, he hadn't a virtue. "I told him I was ashamed . . . I asked him how he dared . . . I said my girl wasn't used to such conduct . . ." and so on, was the burden of her story.

"And when I went to the house the other evening, after me being ill, too, did he come up and kiss me and ask how I was?" she asked, indignantly. "Not him! He says: "Oh, so you're about again, I see," and with that he goes into the kitchen."

She gazed around for our sympathetic horror at this inhuman treatment. Yet surely that son-in-law would have been a saint incarnate if he had been capable of that affectionate kiss and inquiry, knowing the old lady's opinion of him!

Fashion Note.

[Chicago Record-Herald:] A New York physician says there would be no such thing as cancer if people would bare their bodies to the sunlight. Perhaps some of the ladies dress as they do to avoid becoming victims of cancer.

Modern Police Demands.

[Kansas City Journal:] "Gent uptown telephones for an officer at once. Burglar in house."

"Let me see," said the captain, reflectively. "I've got four men censuring plays, two inspecting the gowns at a society function, and two more supervising a tango tea. Tell him I can send him an officer in about two hours."

Find the error and erase it

Yours to make the end most sweet
Only after time has tested
That the first fine rapture rested
On a higher, holier passion
Will the heart endure.

KANE PLUCKS FIRST HOMER.

Hits Scott for Four Sacks With Two On.

Jeems Retaliates With Same Kind of Blow.

Elliott Is Kind and Pauses to Lace Shoe.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

The final Goof horror, slightly ameliorated by the presence of "Death Valley" Jim Scott, was staged at the Washington-street charnel house yesterday with the usual result.

The Tigers tore off the lumpy end of a 6-to-2 score, thereby sending the Goofs away with only three wins to show for their sojourn here—a fortnight of striving and failure to connect.

Scott, the soil of China, England, Egypt, and other well-known countries still clinging to his pelts, took hold in the fifth inning.

This was Scott's first appearance since he pitched for the edification of King George, ruler of Great Britain and several outlying districts, at the Southside Park in little old London.

JOHNNY'S HOMER.

Scott made a stirring appeal for the Irish vote. But he declined to make his position clear in regard to home rule, and John Kane rose up on his hind legs and hit the ball to the centerfield fence for a home run, with two on in the eighth.

This was a cruel and unexpected blow, as for three innings Scott had been smoking the Tigers away from the plate as fast as they could file up.

To be hit, thus, by a mere centerfielder, after having pitched before the King of England, the Shah of Persia, the Prince of Monaco, the Khedive of Egypt, the bashi-bazouk of Arabia, and other prominent foreigners, so greatly incensed Scott that he hit the ball to the fence himself in the ninth.

Scott got credit for a home run, because "Rowdy" Elliott, thinking that it would make good reading back in Chicago, where they have been receiving nothing but bad news, positively refused to touch him at the plate.

Hogan divided the pitching three ways, Hitt, Harkness and White getting a three-inning assignment each.

HITT AS GOOD.

Of these, Hitt was in the most satisfying pitching mood. He heaved shut-out ball, and was found for two hits, Halstein getting one and Billy Rhyne the other. In the third inning, Walsh lammed the ball down the third-base line. It passed the base about six inches foul, but Phyle, not caring to monkey with mere trifles, opined that it ought to have been fair if it wasn't, and allowed Walsh to linger at first. As it shortened up the game, no one raised a holler. Two were out when it happened, and Sheehan made it three.

Venice scored two runs through force of habit in the first. With two down, "Babe" Borton playfully hit the ball to left for two bases. Bayless brought him in with a single to the same locality. Dickey stole second in a bold and contemptuous manner.

Barbour knocked down Kane's swift one, and then made a futile attempt to nail Johnny at first. Meantime, Bayless was beating it for the plate like a budding Kiviat. This so horrified Halstein that he became transfixed and threw to Mayer about six minutes late. Schreiber strangled Hoop's fly for the third out.

LITSCHI SCORES.

Litschi walked in the second, rushed madly to third when Elliott whistled a single over Halstein and scored on Hitt's slow demise, Blackburne to Halstein.

Six men faced Scott in the fifth and sixth, and four of them bit the real estate on strikes. A walk got Jeems into some trouble in the seventh, but he managed to wiggle out. He passed Litschi with two down, and Elliott followed with an infield hit that struck Sheehan in the Adam's apple. White forced Litschi at third.

In the eighth the Tigers got real familiar with Scott. Carlisle tried to bunt a couple down the third base line. Failing in this he bunted the ball on a line to center. Leard dumped the ball in front of the plate and Mayer made a throw that

CRITICS SAY RITCHIE IS BETTER THAN AD WOLGAST

MILWAUKEE (Wis.) March 15.—The newspaper comments following the Wolgast-Ritchie fight, develop a remarkable unanimity of opinion in the Milwaukee newspaper fight criticisms, in that Ritchie is highly praised, even by the newspapers which gave Wolgast a draw verdict. W. W. Rowlands, in the Journal, declared that Wolgast would never get a better chance to the title than he would have had by remaining down for the count, after he was fouled, and taking his chance on the award by a foul.

A. J. Schinner in the Sentinel, is the strongest supporter of Ritchie of all, though he insisted that Wolgast's showing earned him a draw.

Here is what Schinner says, as typical of local opinion:

"Wolgast's work showed one thing anyway. He has come back, possibly as far as he can come. He is getting older as they rate the ages of fighters, and unless he meets Ritchie within the next year he will have little opportunity of corralling his lost laurels. Ritchie is getting better day by day. Against Wolgast he showed plenty of class, and while Ad will have considerable advantage over Ritchie in a long fight on the Coast, due to all the rough and free stuff he will be allowed to use, it is doubtful whether he has sufficient stamina left at his age to go the route with the champ."

MOTORBIKE RECORDS ARE SMASHED AT BAKERSFIELD.

BAKERSFIELD, March 15.—In the motorcycle races held here this afternoon two world's records were broken and one was equaled for races on a one-mile circular dirt track. Glenn Stokes of Los Angeles covered ten miles in 8m. 6 3-5s., breaking Birmingham's record of 8m. 9 2-5s.; rode 69.5 miles in 1 hour, breaking E. G. Baker's record of 66.7 miles in an hour; and made a mile in 46 2-5s. from a flying start. This latter equals the world's mile automobile record. M. Tice of Bakersfield, although defeated by Stokes, broke the former hour world's record, making 67 miles, 1560 yards in the allotted time. Stokes also rode the twenty-five-mile free-for-all from a flying start in 21:15.

The one-hour race was delayed for E. G. Baker, former holder of the record, who arrived from Phoenix, Ariz., at 4:30 o'clock to participate. He finished third and equaled his old record of 66.7 miles.

Well, Why Not?

NEW YORK, March 15.—Oakland, Cal., Portland, Or., and St. Louis are rivals for the position of starting point for the national balloon race which will be held next July, the Aero Club of America announced tonight.

The Chamber of Commerce of Oakland will provide $3500 in prizes in case the start is made from that city, while Portland is offering $2000 for the same purpose. What the St. Louis offer is was not made known, but it is understood that the Oakland bid will be submitted to Portland and St. Louis by the Aero Club with a view to getting further action. The Oakland offer was made through the Aero Club of San Francisco.

Among the foreign pilots of note who will enter the international race next October are Hans Berliner and Hugo Kauten, respectively holders of world's records for distance and duration.

The following entries for the international race have been made to date: Germany, three balloons; France, three; Belgium, two; Austria, two; Switzerland, one, making a total of fourteen, including three balloons for America.

The Aero Clubs of Italy, Russia and Argentina are still to be heard from, and it is thought possible that they may yet enter.

The Invaders.

A MATEURS HERE FROM PORTLAND.

THREE OF THEM ARRIVE WITH TOMMY TRACEY.

Appear Like a Formidable Crew of Scrappers and Each of Them Has a Championship at His Belt. Middleweight and Bantamweight Classes Look the Best.

Tommy Tracey, boxing instructor of the Multnomah Club of Portland hove in view yesterday with three boxers, two of them champions and one a near-champion, followed closely in his wake.

Walter Williams, ex-champion in the 115-pound class; Walter Knowlton, 125-pound title-holder, and Earl Miebus, winner in the middle and heavyweight classes, blew in, looking serenely confident of returning home accompanied by a few trunks full of medals, not to mention several titles.

Earl Miebus is, perhaps, the most distinguished of the invaders, having the proud record of sticking around in the ring with Bob McAllister for a full three rounds when that young man was at his best, and being the only young man known to history who ever lasted more than one round with the Olympic Club marvel.

OVER WEIGHT.

Miebus is slightly over the 158-pound mark at present and doesn't know whether or not he will be able to qualify in that division. If the weather is sufficiently warm to enable him to shed the extra poundage without undue exertion or strain he will do so, otherwise he will confine himself to battling with the behemoths in the white-hope class.

Miebus would have to be in great shape to carry off the honors in the middleweight division, as there are more good boxers in this class than ever before.

Pete Towne of the L.A.A.C. has never been beaten and has a kick like a peevish mule in either fist, while Steadman of Pasadena, the young man who forever blasted the hopes of Fred Hawtrey, once the most-feared amateur on the Coast, is also entered.

Jack Mertens of the Olympic Club is the dark horse in this event, but it is pretty generally rumored that he combines the cleverness of McAllister with the wallop of Hawtrey, which would be some death-dealing combination.

THOSE BANTAMS.

The 115-pound class is going to provide some of the best scraps of the tourney if the prospects continue as they are at present.

Edgar Williams of the Olympic Club, Walter Williams of Portland and a whole flock of other young men are entered for this event and every one of them promises to die rather than be defeated. Inasmuch as there will be only one winner, it is presumed that there will be several deaths.

The other northerners are due in early this week and the prospects are that before the big tourney is over there will be some of the hottest scraps ever seen in this city on the stage at the Athletic Club.

WINNERS OF BALL PASSES.

The bewhiskered individual whose photograph was published in The Times of March 8, was none other than Charley Baum, late of the Venice Tigers and now of the Seals. The four winners whose names are found below can have two tickets apiece to the opening Coast League game by applying at The Times sporting desk at 1 o'clock Saturday, March 28. The winners in the order in which their answers were received, are as follows:

Mrs. R. P. Mathews, No. 1517 Maple avenue.

Richard Watson, No. 2838 South Grand avenue.

C. R. Turner, No. 868 West Forty-first street.

D. D. Poston, No. 212 North Olive street.

Is Losing.

JOE RIVERS DOESN'T LOOK RIGHT TO VAN.

Mexican Lightweight Appears in About the Same Condition that He Was in When Joe Mandot Beat Him—Welsh Looks in Wonderful Shape for Battle. Battling Chico Says He Will Beat Roy Moore.

BY DE WITT VAN COURT.

ABOUT 1500 people gathered at the Vernon arena yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock to watch Joe Rivers start his final training for his coming twenty-round match with Freddie Welsh that takes place tomorrow.

Rivers made his appearance at just half past three, and immediately started to punch the light bag. He slammed it for just two minutes and busted the inner bag. This ended his bag punching. He then skipped the rope for three rounds and shadow boxed for three more. Then he boxed three fast rounds with Solly Burns and three with Lea Louder.

In his boxing with Solly Burns, he showed a lot of speed and the full three rounds were very fast. But Solly made him miss many times by pulling his head away from well-intended blows that would surely have done a lot of damage if they had landed, notwithstanding the fact that they both wore heavy gloves.

Rivers seemed to have a lot of ginger in his work, but did a lot of loafing between rounds and appears to me to be in about the same condition he was in when he lost to Joe Mandot the first time.

His method of training is far from what it should be for such an important contest.

Welsh in Condition.

Freddie Welsh left his hotel about 1 o'clock and ran out to Jack Doyle's training quarters. He then put in several rounds with the "manikin" punching bag, and did more of his gymnasium work. After a good massage he took a rest and about 4 o'clock did a lot more of his gymnasium work, then boxed three rounds each with Eddie Duffy, Roy Moore and Charlie Woods.

Welsh seems to have it on Joe Rivers in judgement of distance, countering and all around work. He worked without a shirt on, and his skin looked as silk and soft as a velvet pillow. He had a healthy glow to his skin and in every way seemed to be there for a twenty-round contest.

Welsh will only do a small amount of work today, a little rope work, shadow boxing, and perhaps some road work, just enough to keep himself right. He and his trainers are perfectly satisfied with his condition and Freddie himself says he will win this contest.

Battler Good.

Joe Lewis, who is training Battling Chico, says that the Battler never was in better condition. He boxed several rounds with his sparring partners yesterday afternoon and had plenty of speed. He was hitting as good as he ever did and fully expects to beat Roy Moore.

Moore should not be overlooked as he comes very highly touted from San Francisco. He has won many contests in the northern city and is particularly anxious to win this contest. The winner has been promised a contest with one of the best men in his class and if the promise is made good, the winner should be close in line to meet the champion.

Babe Looks Good.

George Easton, manager of Babe Picato is very enthusiastic over the showing that Picato made in his contest with Steve Ketchel. Easton has every reason to be proud of Babe as he made as clever a showing as any boxer who ever appeared in the Vernon arena. Picato showed the very highest class of scientific boxing from each and every point. His style, position, countering and judgement of distance was every bit as good as that of Jimmy Clabby when he met Sailor Petroskey.

Joe Rivers, peeved.

The Mexican lightweight, who is to meet Freddie Welsh tomorrow, is sore at the statements that he is not in condition for a hard battle and says that he will show how good he is when he steps into the ring.

Saturday. Early.

TIGER-HUN DUAL MEET.

Looks Like Best Event of the Year.

Pritchard in Hot Duel With Dave Sturges.

McClung May Spring Surprise in Hurdles.

Occidental and Pomona may neither of them have enough class to defeat U.S.C. on the cinders, but between them they promise to put up one of the most sensational dual meets ever staged in Los Angeles when they mingle on the Tiger track this coming Saturday.

Last year the Tigers won their first victory over the Huns in something like six years by grabbing an unexpected first place in the relay.

This year the Huns have forestalled such an action on the part of the Tigers by getting together one of the speediest relay teams ever seen in these parts, therefore the Tigers have specialized on the other events in order to cinch the meet without the relay.

The 100-yard dash should be a whirlwind with Larry Gillette a slight favorite over Harry Kirkpatrick of the Tigers. The winner will float in ahead of his rival by inches if previous performances amount to anything.

GREEN VS. COOK.

The 440 promises to be the most sensational event of the day. George Green of Pomona looks like a sure winner on actual performances, but Cook, the young hercules who rips off the quarter for the Tigers, is said to have shaded 51 seconds without competition last week, and this means a real race.

One of the duels will be between Paul Pritchard of Occidental and Dave Sturges of Pomona, who will meet in the mile and two-mile events. Pritchard is short on experience, but long on class, and has not only left Swiggett far in the rear in the longer distance, but has clipped off four laps in well under 4:40, having pressed Bill Annin very closely.

Annin learned his lesson in the 880 at U.S.C., when he loafed at the start and was boxed, recovering too late to beat Tipton. He has been resting off the half and mile in exceptionally speedy time and is going after the Southern California record in the shorter distance.

M'CLUNG A FIND.

Interest in the hurdles doesn't center in Kirkpatrick of Occidental, who appears to have the two events cinched, but rather in Sam McClung, who has recently blossomed forth as a timber-topper of considerable class, having beaten Creighton in the good time of 16 flat last week.

McClung and Creighton will be pitted against Heath and Daggs of Pomona, and the Tigers have a good chance of shutting the Huns out of the money in this event.

It is in the uncertain events like the high and broad jumps, the pole vault and the hammer throw that the winning and losing of the meet seems to lie.

The Tigers have three hammer tossers who have registered 130 feet in Wieman, McNary and Kinney, but all of them are troubled with inability to remain within the charmed circle and Heath has a fine chance to win first place.

DOUBTFUL EVENT.

Lockard, Coffeen and Johnson are all good for 11 feet in the pole for Occidental, but Jones of Pomona has been registering near that mark lately and may slip something over on the Tigers.

Gillette of Pomona and Lockhard and Lawyer of Occidental, have been leaping over the twenty-one-foot mark and will provide some hot competition in the broad jump with the odds in favor of the Pomona man, while in the high jump the odds seem to lie in favor of Creighton and Lawyer of the Tigers over Davies of Pomona.

Pomona rooters seem to feel that they have the meet cinched, but the strong showing of the Tigers during the past two weeks coupled with the fact that the meet is to be held on the difficult Occidental track seems to throw the balance slightly in favor of the Tigers.

MICHIGAN AGGIES STILL IN FRONT.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Results of the twelfth week's contest among the colleges and universities for the gallery rifle shooting supremacy show the Michigan Agricultural College still in the lead, the teams having turned in a new record for the match during the week, of 959 points. California shot 941 against Purdue, 931.

In class B, the Washington State College still is holding first place, with the United States Naval Academy close behind, and only one more match to be shot.

Class C has finished its series, the University of Illinois winning with a series of nine straight victories.

SAN GABRIEL BEATEN BY LOS ANGELES GOLFERS.

H. N. H. Woodcock Only Man Among the Losers to Win His Match—Jack Jevne Defeats George Cline. Southern Women's Championship Coming Soon—Mrs. Kennett May Go North.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

THE Los Angeles team won their league match against the San Gabriel team on the San Gabriel links yesterday by 6 points to 1.

San Gabriel's one point was won by H. N. H. Woodcock, who defeated E. H. Seaver by 3 up and 2.

The Los Angeles men formed quite a stylish team and complimented San Gabriel by taking over most of their best men. Jack Jevne himself played George Cline, who is still hovering on the brink of being the next club champion, and defeated him by 2 up.

Roger D. Lapham was gentle with Ross Hickox, letting him down kindly with 3 up and 2. Judge Fredericksen was slightly more harsh with Charles Alkire, defeating him by 4 up and 3.

J. C. Niven also defeated William Harper by 4 up and 3. A quite-too-charming lady asked me on Saturday whether Mr. Niven was English or was that his natural manner? She said it would help her to understand.

Edward Tufts defeated J. Norman Kerr by 3 up and 1. All the caddies are glad Edward won—he put up such a beautiful cup for them to play for.

E. H. Bagby defeated Jefferson by 2 and 1—and we will wager he left Mr. Jefferson better informed than he found him. Mr. Bagby is an instructive as he is charming.

Strenuous Weeks.

The next three weeks will be strenuous ones for the golf chronicler. Two Southern California championship meetings, two invitation tournaments and the Julius A. Brown competition, besides several team matches.

Tomorrow, Tuesday, the women golfers will assemble at the Los Angeles Country Club for the invitation tournament which is in charge of Miss Katherine Mellus. There will be an eighteen-hole qualifying round commencing at 1 p.m., and prizes for each flight of eight. Driving, putting and approaching contests and a handicap event are all part of the programme, finishing up with mixed foursomes on Friday.

This is sure to be a success, for the local clubs are responding enthusiastically and contingents from both Riverside and Redlands are coming down. All sorts of charming arrangements are being made for their comfort, with special rates for those that care to stay at the Country Club during the whole tournament.

Women's Championship.

That invitation tournament will just get everyone nicely warmed up for the Southern California championship which will take place at the Midwick Country Club April 13-14. This one is to be in charge of Mrs. R. R. Williams, who is also planning a few special events in addition to the programme for the championship proper.

It will start with an eighteen-qualifying round at 1 p.m. Monday, the first eight to qualify for the championship and the rest for second and third flights on handicap.

Tuesday the 14th will be devoted to first-round match play in all flights, and Wednesday to the semi-finals. Thursday has been reserved for the finals, and mixed foursomes in the afternoon.

There are to be two prizes for each flight and the more entries there are the better the prizes. Entries may be made direct to the secretary of the association, Alexander MacKlegan, at 415 Van Nuys building or through the secretary of one's club.

Mrs. R. R. Williams holds the title but is very modest about the possibility of keeping it. She has been playing altogether too much tennis of late and, as everyone knows, that plays the dickens with one's swing. There is much regret that Mrs. Williams cannot go north to defend her title to the coast championship on the 30th, when that event is to be held at Ingleside. But they are trying to persuade Mrs. Kennett to go up. The latter is playing a glorious game just now and everyone feels confident that she could easily keep the title in the south if she will compete. News from the north indicates that Miss Cheesebrough is suffering a period of "offness," although Miss Warner is still winning everything in sight.

The Men.

The men's championship takes place a few days before the women's—April 9-11th, at the San Gabriel Country Club.

It will follow immediately upon the heels of the Redlands invitation tournament, which can confidently count upon a southern invasion. Everyone is going and the cream of us necessarily, for all those league matches are on the programme.

The Redlands tournament opens at 9 a.m. on the morning of the 16th, which means that everyone will go up on Wednesday, the 15th. There will be an eighteen-hole qualifying round for which you may select your own partner, providing you are not on a team. Team matches will be played concurrently with the tournament events, as also will a handicap event.

Second-round matches and first beaten eights must be played Friday morning, semi-finals and second beaten eights in the afternoon.

Saturday includes the thirty-six-hole finals and handicap best ball foursomes—three crowded days of terrific golf.

The prizes are for the winner and runner-up of the tournament, for each flight and each beaten eight, and for the best net in the handicap, besides a first and second qualifying prize. A sumptuous list—one recalls that Redlands was among the first of the clubs to set a luxurious standard in this respect two years ago.

The Redlands course is a small one, but very sporting and in first-class condition. Very hilly and distinctive, calling for very careful discrimination in play, especially for the stranger. It is rare for a good Redlands player to be beaten on his own links, although both Jack Jevne and Michael McLaughlin captured honors there in the last event two years ago.

Oliver H. Hicks, a veteran golfer well known at local tournaments, is being feted tonight at the Redlands Country Club for taking such good care of the course during the recent floods. It appears that his foresight and ingenuity are responsible for the fact that there is a course left to play on.

L. A. HIGH SWIMMERS TO MEET TOMORROW.

Los Angeles High will hold its fifth annual interclass swimming tournament at Bimini baths tomorrow night and the competition seems to be between the senior and sophomore teams.

Bob Howard, the team captain, should be the bright and shining light of the meet and should put up some fast time in the 50, 100 and 220-yard dashes. The senior relay team, composed of Aseltine, Coleman, McArthur and Howard, looks good for first place in that event.

Why Should He?

WILLIE RITCHIE SAYS HE WILL NOT BAR ANYBODY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, March 15.—The popularity of Willie Ritchie, lightweight champion, was shown today when the management of a West Side theater had to turn away an overflow crowd of 800 persons who were unable to gain admission to the initial performance of the champion.

Fully 1000 persons gathered in front of the theater to get a glimpse of the fighter who defeated Ad Wolgast in a ten-round bout at Milwaukee last Thursday. When the champion finally did appear at the theater he was given a rousing reception.

When Ritchie was introduced the cheering continued for five minutes.

"I am willing to defend my title against any fighter in the world of my weight over any distance," Ritchie said after his exhibition. "I have found that I can do 135 pounds with ease and if the occasion demands I can make 133 pounds. As far as weight is concerned I am the champion and as such will dictate the terms. Other champions have done the same and I intend to follow their examples.

"I am matched to box ten rounds with Harlem Tommy Murphy in San Francisco on April 17. I am sure I can beat him and if successful I will meet Charlie White, Jimmy Duffy or any of the lightweights in six or ten-round bouts before clubs offering the highest inducements.

"Just a word in regard to the Wolgast fight at Milwaukee last Thursday. I did not foul him. I have always been given credit for being a clean fighter. If I had landed low Wolgast would have been unable to finish that seventh round as strongly as he did. He was strong in the eighth, ninth and tenth rounds, and as every one knows a fighter who has been fouled could not put up the fight that Wolgast did after the blow.

BEAVERS TAKE TWO CONTESTS.

SANTA MARIA WALLOPED TWICE IN A ROW.

Pitcher Rojas of Bushers Is Again Very Successful, but Beavers Manage to Beat Him in First Game. Higginbotham Saved by Bancroft's Fielding.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SANTA MARIA, March 15.—The Portland boys hooked up this afternoon for another double-header and succeeded in taking both the local clubs into camp, the first contest by a score of 3 to 2 and the second by 7 to 0.

The regulars started off first against the Final club and for a time it looked as though the lads from the oil belt, this time without Rodgers's help, would again take the Beavers into camp. Pitcher Bill Rojas was again on the mound for the Final club and the Portlanders had their troubles locating his shoots and benders. For five innings the local lad held his opponents to six hits and two runs, then Stringer took up the burden, three hits and one run being scored against the latter.

Higginbotham worked the entire matinee for the regulars, and only the sparkling fielding stunts of Dave Bancroft saved the big fellow from defeat.

In the second contest Bill Hall took the mound for Santa Maria, and on a combination of heavy clouting by the Beavers and errors by the locals six runs were chalked up against him before "Handsome Jack" Gilligan took the mound in the fourth. One more tally was added to the score while Jack was on the job.

Hanson and Petts alternated in this contest, and pitched great ball. Petts showed all kinds of class and the big collegian looks as if he will do.

Davis hit one far over the left field fence and brought joy to McCredie's bosom.

Following is the score:

SYDNEY (N. S. W.) March 15.—Eddie McGoorty of Oshkosh, Wis., was given the decision over Jeff Smith, another American fighter, at the end of a hard-fought twenty-round bout today. The referee's decision was unpopular. The fight took place in the Stadium and was seen by 10,000 persons.

WATCH SPOKANE TRIMMED BY SAN RAFAEL TEAM.

Nig Clarke's Athletes Step Aside and Allow Spokane to Meet Marin County Ball Tossers and All Goes Well Until the Bushers Slam Out Eleven Runs in Two Innings.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BOYES SPRINGS, March 15.—The scheduled game to take place at Boyes Springs today between the Stay-at-homes and Spokanes was somewhat changed about when San Rafael sent a challenge to the Spokane club last night, and notwithstanding the fact that Nig Clarke's squad had plenty of workouts during the week, they stepped aside to let the Marin county athletes pit their talents against the youngsters trying to make the Northwestern League.

Manager Mike Lynch put four pitchers into the box in nine innings, giving each one an opportunity of showing what he was made of. The first three innings were handled by Sharon and no runs were scored. Spaulding, who followed in the fourth inning, also held them runless.

Then Healon was put into the fray. In two innings the San Rafael boys heaped up eleven runs, but this should not discredit the ability of Pitcher Healon, as it was only his second day in camp and he suffered some pain from a blistered ankle. There was nothing very exciting in the game. The score was 11 to 8.

"Possum" Clarke and crew showed up at the game and lent a very picturesque atmosphere in the grand stand with their starched collars against their bronzed skins and were all very encouraged rooters.

SANTA BARBARA BEATS ELECTRICS.

SANTA BARBARA, March 15.—The Los Angeles Electrics this afternoon lost an interesting game to the local team. The visitors had a lead of five runs up to the sixth inning, when Santa Barbara made two runs, following with two more in the seventh and three in the eighth. The Los Angeles boys were unable to overcome the lead, though they had three men on bases in the ninth inning. A double play retired the side. Next Sunday the locals will play the Pacific Electrics. Score:

Santa Barbara	7	8	1
Los Angeles Electrics	5	9	1

SOX BEAT OAKS, LOSE TO SEALS.

PRUITT HANDS THEM THE FIRST GAME.

Bill Toser and Tub Purnell Only Allow Them Four Measly Hits in the Afternoon Game, Toser's Pair of Passes Accounting for a Run. Cicotte Is the Victim.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 15.—Comiskey's regulars treated the Oaks to an 8 to 2 defeat on the Oakland grounds this morning, making three to four in favor of the Sox. The ease with which Pruitt was hit permitted the Chicagoans to assume an early and commanding lead. He stayed on the mound no longer than four innings, in which brief breathing spell six runs and ten hits were piled up.

Tyler Christian followed in the box, and managed to do nicely, except in the seventh three hits were bunched to give the visitors two more runs. Eight innings were played, the time limit compelling the clubs to call a halt before the regulation session was finished. The Oaks had to be content with six hits off the Lathrop-Russell combination and it was the wildness of Lathrop, who from the first, had trouble in getting the ball across the plate, that was chiefly responsible for the showing made by the Devilnites.

Second Sacker Murphy of the Oaks was in his prime when it came to fielding boots. Two easy chances were muffed by the new Commuter and he will have to pick up in his work if he is to have the privilege of holding down that sack.

The San Franciscans in the afternoon concluded the second and final series against Chicago's best team, with a 5 to 1 score in their favor. It's natural for all teams to look well when they are winning, but it's not giving the Seals any the better of it to remark that they really made a showing worth while. There was an errorless game in the field and they landed on Eddie Cicotte for nine healthy swats, while the duo of pitchers for the locals—Toser and Pernoll—more than held their own, each of them being charged with a brace of hits. Toser allowed two passes in the second that counted for a run and he was lucky there were no more tallies.

Pernoll didn't get away to a flying start in the sixth, when he came to the front, but by dint of heady fielding the side was retired without a run and thereafter he was in better shape. On the aggressive the Seals showed their best form in that same sixth inning, bunching four hits off Cicotte to produce three clangs of the bell.

There was a fair Sunday crowd and while few thrillers were produced there was plenty of action all the way and it was well along in the session before the Seals had gained a commanding lead.

CHANCE MADE BID FOR SULLIVAN'S SERVICES.

Tried to Get Veteran Catcher from the White Sox. Chicks Leave for North—White Sox First Team to Open Here Thursday—Tigers in Redlands Today. Jack Powell Is a Physical Phenomenon.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

BEFORE the White Sox were able to give Billy Sullivan much encouragement behind the bat last season, it seems that Comiskey and others do not fancy the idea of him as a total cinch.

It was learned yesterday, and from apparently reliable source, that Charley Comiskey recently did his durndest to get Sullivan from the Sox. This would indicate that the P. L. still nursing bitter memories of the way which Billy did to the Cubs in 1910. Do not think that he is in a position to get all known."

In the opinion of Ray Schalk as one of the first magnitude, crowded out of the picture in the background as far as Sullivan is concerned, but the fact remains that the latter couldn't bear to get back to work with a rival club.

Sullivan as a coach of young pitchers. When the club finally decided to get rid of him it is believed Comiskey will endeavor to get him into some league franchise, as he would like to see established him in a manager's role.

The Chicks left San Francisco for Sacramento, where for two days they will endeavor to assemble what kind of a club Harry Wolter is getting together.

Some members of the Goods shouldn't be surprised, that city recently received a visit from the L. A. boys.

Bill Rodgers left behind them Big Ed Reulbach, Vic Saier, Rube Kuhn, neither of whom will be with them when they open their season with Frisco. Kavanagh, who is suffering from water on his knee, and Bill Hinchman, also remained behind. Both of these boys have not yet been given their unconditional release.

Next Year.

Some of the wiseacres are of the opinion that we should have a real team with which to battle the White Sox No. 2 aggregation to open here on March 26, but they figure to have done nothing to gloat over until the middle of April, when they will be strengthened by the addition of Jack Fournier, Rube Marquard, Zack Wheat, Hy Myers, Jake Daubert and Otto Miller, who are much here from Chicago, Brooklyn and Cincinnati tomorrow. Pitcher Marquard is expected to show above the Sox before the end of the week.

Pitchers Ruined.

Pitcher Jack Powell worked up the proper trajectory to today's interesting affair in the afternoon pit his Universityites of Redlands, the rising young institution of learning which is to go out of its class to consider the case suffering from a severe attack of the pressing need to warrant the presence of first string men. He is the matchless to Tory Agnew, Buck Weaver, Eddie Cicotte and Claude Williams, three pitchers will be used by Manager Henley. Defensive strength, Morton Cooper, Harry Both been pounded hard Hoop and McQuillan have been asked to make the trip, but it is considered that one of the university pitchers will play second and Wilhoit are to be followed by Mitchell and Wednesday, when the Tigers in the four series.

Almost Equals Young.

If the bitter truth must be known, Powell has been pitching for twenty years, and eighteen of them in the major leagues. In this respect he stands second only to "Cy" Young, who saw something like twenty-two years of major league service.

Powell continued with Cleveland until 1899, when he went to the St. Louis Cardinals. He jumped to the St. Louis Browns in 1902, or the third year of the American League, and continued with that club until last season, when he was sold to Louisville.

His work with the Colonels was of a high order, and he won a good percent. of his games. As the general run of ball players go, Powell should have landed in the discard about ten years ago. But like Young, nature was lavish with him and fashioned him on enduring lines.

Powell impresses one as a great piece of granite, against which the elements have been wasting their fury. But, of course, this simile does not give an adequate idea of his ability to field his position. The only chance I have had to size Jack up was in the clubhouse when he was sitting on an empty soap box taking off his shoes.

Hughes Champion Kidder.

Fifteen years in the big league have grayed "Long Tom" Hughes about the temples, and likewise behind the ears, but in spirit he still is in the knickerbocker period.

Off the field, Hughes positively refuses to take life seriously. He is the champion kidder at Camp Hope, and half the time has the whole force from Dillon down to "Doc" Finley up on a barrel yelling for help.

"Long Tom" insists on doing his own training—that is, working according to his own ideas. He has it figured out as the result of fifteen springs in training camps, that it requires exactly seventeen days for him to get in shape. Beyond this he positively refuses to work.

"You don't observe much surplus weight on me," said Hughes, stretching his six feet some of spare frame. "Well, if I got out and chased around the lot like some of these fat boys, Clarence Brooks, for instance, I would be as stale as a last season's doughnut when the season starts. Seventeen days for me, no more, no less."

Has Dillon Guessing.

Dillon, who is inclined to take rather a serious view of baseball, has been a shining mark for Hughes. When they get tangled in a conversation, Dillon is never quite sure whether Hughes is kidding him or talking on the square.

"I can't recall that you ever landed bar in the big league," Hughes remarked one night.

"If that fellow is a good pitcher as he is a kidder, then I have sure picked a winner," muttered Dillon, turning on his heel.

But there is another side to "Long Tom."

Once in the box, he sheds this gay and festive disposition. At the sound of "play ball," to win becomes the consuming passion of his life.

This being the case, "Long Tom" has a passionate seven months ahead of him.

Young Harper Gets Away With Two Home Runs, While McNeeley and Benson of Fresno Each Bag One—Meek Drives in a Couple of Runs and Calvo Plays Fine Ball.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN BERNARDINO, March 15.—Dillon used two veterans in the game with Fresno little brothers today. Tom Hughes, ex-Senator, and Charley Chech, and won 8 to 2. It was altogether a hitting game and four home runs and six doubles were registered.

Waldschmidt, the husky German recruit that Berry has turned over to Fresno, opened for the Raisin Pickers, gave way to Layne in the fifth and the latter was relieved by Bentley in the eighth.

Hughes worked well considering it was his first mound duty this year, giving up but four hits and one run. Harper, the young outfielder who was grabbed from San Jose, poled two home runs, one in the second and one in the fourth, no one, however, being on the bases. McNeeley of Fresno sandwiched a circuit drive in the third, while Benson followed suit in the last frame.

Harry Meek, who was sent in by Dillon to play first, got a double in the third and scored Maggert and Page. Calvo got a double and a single and pilfered two bases. Hughes broke his curves over the plate and fanned Benson and Reed in the first. He treated Calac likewise at the opening of the second. George Wheeler of the Fresno tribe expects young Waldschmidt to be the leading pitcher in the State League this summer.

BIG SWIMMING MEET FOR HIGH SCHOOLS NEXT MONTH

ON FRIDAY NIGHT, April 17, the annual Southern California Interscholastic swimming meet will take place at the L.A.A.C. tank. This meet will be for the championship of the south and some splendid races are expected.

This will be the most important swimming event of the year and the largest high school meet ever held. The list of events include the 50, 100, 220 and 440-yard dashes, four-man relay with each man swimming 100 yards. The diving will consist of compulsory dives, plain front dive, front jack knife, forward somersault, back dive and one voluntary dive. Those competing will have the choice of low spring board, ten-foot spring board or high platform.

Each school will be allowed to enter two men in each event and an entry fee of 25 cents will be charged each man entering with 10 cents for each additional event he is in. A splendid big banner will be given the winning school and it is possible that gold medals will be given to the winners of first place if the meet warrants it.

All schools or men desiring information or sending in communications are to address R. L. Haslett, physical director, Polytechnic High School, Los Angeles, Cal.

Looks Like a Classic.

PASADENA HORSE SHOW COMING NEXT MONTH.

PASADENA'S POLO CLUB will hold their big horse show at Tournament Park, Pasadena, on April 2, 3 and 4. This will be the classic of the year as far as horse shows go in Southern California. The entry list is growing fast and before it closes on March 26, it is expected to be the largest and finest ever had at any show.

There are seven main classes with forty subdivisions. The winner of each subdivision will be awarded $30, while the second place horses gets $10 and the third $5. These are the main events: Heavy harness class, breeding class, roadster and light harness horses, draught classes, saddle horses, hunters and jumpers, polo ponies.

Every day of the show will be featured by exciting events outside of the contests for prizes. Polo pony races, running races, novelty races, trotting races and pacing races. Entries for these events are being solicited all over the south with some speedy races in view. Judging from the energy displayed by the managers of this show it will be a great success and a big week for the lovers of horses and horse races.

Amateur Champion.

JAY GOULD TO PLAY FOR WORLD'S COURT TITLE.

NEW YORK, March 15.—The initial sports competition of 1914 will be held in Philadelphia tomorrow when Jay Gould, the American amateur, and George F. Covey, the professional title holder, meet in the opening games of the match for the world's court tennis championship. The match has attracted much attention both in England and the United States. The demand for seats is far in excess of the capacity of the Racquet Club, despite the fact that the charges range from $10 to $30.

The match, which is best seven out of thirteen sets, is scheduled to be played in three sections, Monday, Wednesday and Saturday. Covey is to receive the gate receipts less one-third deducted for expenses of the matches, plus travel and training disbursements, win or lose. If he wins he will receive in addition a purse of $1250 subscribed by the Racquet Club. If Gould proves to be the winner, the $1250 will be used to purchase plate, since Gould as an amateur cannot accept the purse in money form.

Gould in addition to holding the American amateur championship for some years, won what was virtually the world's amateur title in London in 1907, when at the age of 18 years he defeated Eustace H. Miles, the English amateur champion for the international title.

Covey won his world's championship in professional court tennis in 1913, when he defeated C. "Punch" Fairs in a match of best seven out of thirteen sets.

GERARDY 'CELLO CONCERT TONIGHT.

The admirers of 'cello music have been looking forward with intense interest to the coming of Jean Gerardy, the Belgian 'cellist who represents what may be termed virtual perfection in his field of art. He is unquestionably the ideal performer on his chosen instrument. Technically, Gerardy is accomplishing more amazing feats than ever, but they are merely a part of his interpretation; not ends that serve alone to display supreme gifts developed to their maximum limit.

It is eight years since this artist played in Los Angeles and naturally his musicianship and artistry have developed and broadened in the interim, for Gerardy is now just 35 years of age, and at the very zenith of his powers. The wondrous Gerardy tone, big, luscious, vibrating with sympathy, is present in greater degree than ever. It does not matter whether the musical phrase happens to be slow or astonishingly fast in single or double stoppings; the tone maintains its lovely characteristics. Replete with musical color of every variety, his tone reveals more virility than ever. There is but one Gerardy, and out of the three violoncellists of world renown at the present before the public, of these Gerardy stands pre-eminent.

His recital tonight at the Auditorium will introduce also Gabriel Ysaye, the young Belgian violinist whose work is already known on the Pacific Coast. Rounding out this competent trio is Carl Bruchhausen, pianist and accompanist, all constituting the closing event of the Philharmonic series. Any unused tickets of any Philharmonic event will be made good at this time. The programme follows:

Intermezzo (Stoyoski,) Mr. Bruchhausen; "Variations Symphonique" (L. Boellman,) Mr. Gerardy; "Reve d'Enfant" (Eugene Ysaye,) "Havanaise" (Saint-Saens,) Mr. Ysaye; suite for violoncello adagio allegro (Boccherini,) Mr. Gerardy; "Romance in G Major" (Beethoven,) Russian airs (Wieniawski,) Mr. Ysaye; "Air" (Bach,) "Abenlied" (Schumann,) "Am Springbrunnen" (Davidoff,) Mr. Gerardy.

TWO MUSICAL SHOWS HERE.

"Robin Hood" and "Merry Gambol" Open Tonight.

"Girl in Red" Hurt in Dive on Horse.

Author of "Pinochle" on Way to Los Angeles.

BY GARDNER BRADFORD.

Two big openings of widely diversified nature are scheduled for tonight. One is "Robin Hood," at the Mason, and the other, "The Merry Gambol," at the Morosco. Both have popular appeal, and come at a time when theater-goers are just ripe for good fun and good music.

We all know "Robin Hood" too well to comment on its music, and, of course, we know nothing of "The Merry Gambol," so what's the use, but both companies in their personnel have much to offer that is of interest.

By the way, notice my high-brow style. That's what happens when you permit yourself to be surfeited with grand opera.

But to get back to cases. To me most interesting of all will be the appearance of old George Frothingham in the role of Friar Tuck in "Robin Hood," for he is the only one who has ever played it, creating the role years and years ago.

He and Henry Clay Barnabee, Jessie Bartlett Davis, Della Fox, Pauline Hall, Lillian Russell and all the rest of those old-timers were all pals in the hey day of their careers and I don't suppose there is any man on the stage today who is so well stocked with reminiscences.

Then there is Bessie Abott, who started out as a grand opera singer, and has the distinction of having had one written especially for her. She is to be Maid Marion.

Like Fritzi Scheff and Emma Trentini, she fell for the lure of the light opera, and has made a success of tremendous proportions. At risk of being called sacrilegious. De Koven, who wrote "Robin Hood," has had the temerity to declare she is the best who ever essayed the role.

Maybe he says it because the whole company was personally selected by him.

On the other hand, "The Merry Gambol" opens tonight minus its star, and surprising to relate, is proud of it. In the star's place, by the way, is a Los Angeles girl, Marta Golden, who used to have a host of friends down at the Grand when that show house was a regular place.

I suspect Ferris Hartman of the subtitution, for he is working for the Anderson Gaiety companies as one of the producing directors, and by the way, he is one of the old-timers who knows how to put on a show.

Then, too, in the cast will be Gene Luneska, who made a decided hit here as the widow in the first "Candy Shop" company.

Also the Marvelous Millers, who can be relied on to furnish some dancing thrills. Personally, I think they are the best in the business, at least, I haven't seen anyone yet I liked better, so am anticipating a treat tonight.

They had all kinds of unscheduled thrills at the Hippodrome Saturday night. With six shows, Dr. Carver, or rather "The Girl in Red," took a chance with a comparatively green horse, when she made her wonderful forty-foot dive into the big plunge, and it nearly cost her her life.

The animal was scary, and when he did make the leap he landed in the water sideways, tried to scramble out of the tank at the wrong end and jambed his plucky rider against the concrete wall. She was fortunate to escape with a dislocated hip and some painful bruises, yet despite the adventure, was on hand yesterday and performed her daring stunts as usual.

The other thrill took place behind the curtain, when Thornton and King, after five shows, refused to go on again, as the rest of the players had.

Manager Fountain argued in vain, and the upshot of it was that the company, which was to have played another week, was canceled. Evidently they thought it a bluff, for they showed up yesterday, only to find that there was nothing doing.

They had their troubles over at the Republic, too, for Florence Stone reported the loss of a camera from her dressing-room. "Glad you didn't make it jewels," commented Manager Watson, "for that would have been old stuff."

A post card from Jack Lait, who wrote "Help Wanted" informs me that he is writing another drama, which he has called "Thumbs Down." He didn't say what it was about, but it sounds interesting, anyway.

And speaking of Lait, reminds that Landers Stevens and Georgia Cooper, who last appeared here at the Hippodrome in one of Lait's sketches, are to play a return engagement shortly in a new offering.

En route for Los Angeles is Adolph Phillip, who wrote "Auction Pinochle," which is shortly to be presented at the Burbank. I understand he is to direct this, the first production in English, of the piece. I bet there will be some comedy when he and Jess Dandy get excited.

We said good-by for the time being to Rock and Fulton and the rest of the "Candy Shop" company last night, and they went to San Francisco, tickled to death with the way they have been received in Los Angeles.

Not so very far hence, they will be back again in a new version of "The Girl Behind the Counter," in which Rock and Fulton made one of the first successes of their career as a team.

Wonder if I thought to mention that Bessie Abett's husband is T. Wolde Storey, the sculptor, and that T. Waldo happens to be the brother of Julian Storey, who used to be the hubby of Emma Eames. It's a fact, and T. Waldo is already in town.

George Damerel, who is to headline the Orpheum bill this week, got in last night, and told me he was going to put in most of his spare time visiting his many relatives here, Los Angeles being his home town, you know.

Do you get the picture? A bunch of merry merries in purple wigs? Or excuse me, it is "Merry Masqueraders" who will be the Pantages headliners this week. Of course, they wear other things besides the purple psyches, but the rest is unimportant.

I don't know which to blame, Marco Wolff or Mark Ellis. You see, Ellis has discovered that Wolff has a tenor voice, but of course Wolff let Ellis discover it. Now, this would have been all right, except that Wolff happens to be a crack-a-jack violinist and has scratched the cat gut on Orpheum time.

Even then one could stand the discovery of a voice, were it not for the fact that Marco, all unaided, has evidently discovered a pair of feet also, for with his wife, he has signed for a month to tango at the Alexandria. Now, if he fiddles, tenors and tangoes escape with a dislocated hip and some painful bruises, yet despite the adventure, was on hand yesterday and performed her daring stunts as usual.

Literally bumped into Charley Alphin and Reece Gardner the other day, in deep conversation over the opening of the Alphin Theater, which event they say, is to take place on April 6.

In the meantime, Charley is writing shows enough to last forty weeks, which I take, it means forty shows, and Reece is wandering around with a wide smile because he is on a contract with the Gaiety people and gets his salary whether he works or not.

Alphin tells me that two of his principals will be Babe Lewis and Weiner Schnitzel. I don't think the last is quite correct, but it sounded something like it.

TY COBB DOESN'T START VERY WELL.

GIRLS TO RACE FOR SKATING TITLE.

Great interest is being taken by roller skate enthusiasts of Los Angeles in the race for the woman's championship of Southern California, which is to be run off tomorrow night between Miss Delia Sherman and Miss Rene Rogers at the St. Patrick's Mask Carnival at the Broadway Skating Rink, held under the auspices of the Roller Skating Association of Southern California.

Both aspirants for the trophy have been faithfully training for the race, and each will have many admirers and supporters on hand cheering from the gallery.

Kane's Homer.

pulled Halstein's hoof clear off the base. Carlisle looted third and Leard did the same thing to second.

Scott here began pitching from the heel up and fanned Borton. When Mayer picked Bayless's fly out of the Goof cellar it seemed that Jim might wiggle out. But Kane, embittered by the thought that Jim had eaten soup at Buckingham, slapped the ball out beyond Schreiber, Carlisle and Leard trooping in ahead of him. This, being the first home run of the season, caused considerable commotion. Glory, however, and honorable mention in the papers is all that Johnny gets out of it, coin showers never being the rage in the spring.

McArdle, eager to be on his way, went out, Barbour to Halstein.

GOOFS SCORE.

The Goofs made their first tally in the sixth at the expense of "Hark" Speckness. After Litschi had retired Blackburne with a brilliant assist, Halstein hammered a single to left. "Rowdy" Elliott tried to catch him off first and almost broke a window in the clubhouse. This accident placed Halstein at second, and he gained the plate on Barbour's single to left. Wolfgang fanned and Barbour was pegged out by Elliott trying to steal on the third strike.

Speckness then stepped aside that "Doc" White might pitch awhile. "Doc" was very cunning until the ninth. Barbour, who is getting to be a regular bad man with the bat, blasted a White slant to left for one base. Wolfgang and Mayer retired to the rear on fly balls.

White, not believing that there is any guile in Scott, walked up and handed him a fat one. Jim soaked it right where Kane had soaked it the inning before. Kane, being a reasonable man, wasted much time in fielding the ball. Leard's relay reached the plate somewhat in advance of Scott. At this critical juncture Elliott found that his shoe had become unlaced. "Rowdy," being very particular about his personal appearance, stooped down and tied it. On looking up he was horrified to find that Scott had just crossed the plate.

BEACHEY CANNOT LOOP THE GNOME.

DESCENDS IN FIELD AFTER RACE CIRCUIT.

Aviator Cancels Japanese Contract, Finding New Machine Lacking Power—Will Abandon Flying Till Supplied With High-Power Aeroplane, Well Tested.

Honorable Seima Ikuhara is lucky! He thought he was damaged $100,000 by the refusal of Lincoln Beachey to fly and lecture in Japan, in accordance with previous honorable announcements. But had Beachey's last two exhibitions been produced in Japan, $100,000 worth of pantaloons would not have sufficed to protect the oriental impresario from the punishment inflicted upon his honorable person by his outraged countrymen, duly assembled to enjoy loop-the-loops and lectures by the Yankee aviator.

Yesterday's show was a repetition of that of Saturday, but instead of landing in the park after his mile race with Barney Oldfield, Beachey landed outside and called everything off for the day.

Engine trouble prevented full control of the Martin machine, and as Beachey had heretofore experienced the discomforts of landing in walnut trees and oaks, he on this occasion descended in a grove of young barley trees. No mishap resulting, the machine was simply dissembled and stored for further consideration.

Japanese lectures and flights are postponed indefinitely. Beachey states positively that he will not again undertake exhibition flights until he is in possession of a well-tried machine of sufficient power for all his purposes.

The fifty-horse-power Gnome revolving motor does not develop enough power for fancy work, and the biplane, hurriedly constructed for an emergency, has never responded to Beachey's delicate manipulations.

In landing after the first flight yesterday the machine was tilted as usual by the broadside wind until only the scraping wings saved a spill. The wheels are of too narrow tread to resist lateral pressure, and the lack of control wrought by the tipping frames endangers spectators as well as operator.

Oldfield did not have his Christie Demon repaired overnight, so used his Renault racer of 100 horsepower in a mile circuit against time, on which the time was given as 44 2-5s. This and the race record following amply proved that the time-keeper's watch was in better running condition than any machine on the ground.

Oldfield won the mile race against Beachey in the quoted time of 45 3-5s.—an indicated speed which should justify Beachey's statements that his engine went bad immediate afterward, and should induce Barney to discard forever the 800-horse-power Christie which won't work, and that couldn't make that speed if it would.

A crowd of about 15,000 was made up of 4000 paid admissions and an army of children passed free.

LETTERS TO "THE TIMES."

Should Shield the Medicine.

LOS ANGELES, March 13.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In reply to Mrs. M. Prebendall, of Wednesday last, I would say it is true that some M.D.'s do cover up their failure in most ingenious ways and seem to have no conscience in the matter. But for these men, who conceal the unmentionable cause, no power they are out of danger of suffering their loathsome ailments on unborn children or, perhaps, unsuspecting wives, why the public should suffer. What concerns me is the exorbitant prices used on these "unmentionables" for which we taxpayers have to foot the bill. The City Hospital is an expensive institution. When the deserving poor have to be treated by skilled physicians, tenderly cared for by a host of nurses and given wholesome food, we have no objections to pay for the riff-raff of all our cities but all notices to be sent here should be ostracized, as also all members and men who are guilty of contributing to the delinquency of girls.

PAULINE SEYMOUR.

The Loan Business.

LOS ANGELES, March 14.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I noticed a long article in your paper in reference to personal loans. Some years ago I was employed in a loan office and have a knowledge of the business, and will say that I have borrowed from these offices when no one else would help me.

I must say that I met some of the most honorable men in this line of business and they help a great many people out of a tight place. I found that I was in the business, it was one of the dead beats that the loan agency had any trouble with. You will find that these dead beats go through bankruptcy for a few years, and if you take them into court how they will lie to throw a light on the loan man to the judge.

I know one man that was in the loan business. He is now in the insurance business. This man tells me he is making twice the money in the insurance business that he ever did in the loan business. Take it from me that the loan business is not a decent business some people try to make it.

I also know people look at their loan transactions before condemning some other business, which they don't understand anything about.

I don't have to borrow from these people any longer, as I have made a success dealing in real estate, but my success was due to one certain thing.

Pitiful.

LIVING DEATH FOR TWO IN COFFINS OF PLASTER.

"I'M NEVER asked charity. But I'm desperate. I've reached my limit; I must have money."

Tears came in his eyes, Paul B. Hardy, in summarizes a remarkable story of misfortune, while on a bed in his home his invalid wife and baby girl, both in plaster casts, were unable to move or to do the simplest things for themselves.

In a modest rooms at No. 827 East Sixth street Hardy yesterday told a pitiful story of his struggles against fate—accident, disease, poverty and real loss of employment. Their little home, where he has cooked, scrubbed and chambermaided, is clean. Table cloth and dishes, while on the table were a half box of oranges. Evidence was evidence that Hardy was doing everything humanly possible to make life bearable for his family.

Two years ago trouble began, when the birth of little Pauline was followed by operations were performed on Mrs. Hardy, who then developed tuberculosis of the spine. Three months ago she became helpless; for almost a year now she has been an immovable cast, that encases her body from shoulders to hip and leg to the knee. Tuberculosis of the hip joint has set in.

Hardy, who had been working as a bartender, lost his job over a year ago. Since then he has supported the helpless family by doing such odd work as came his way. The last was as a laborer at the city water works, from December to February 22 last. He has not worked in the weeks since then.

Kind neighbors have done something, but the patients need almost constant attention. The son, Charles, a bright little lad of 7, attends school, but has given most of the attention Mrs. Hardy and Pauline needed during the day.

Yesterday Hardy devoted his afternoon to the wife and little girl, taking them in his arms and carrying them out into the sunshine, their first relief from bed in more than a month.

"If I could have left them," he explained, "I would have gone out on the aqueduct or to the oilfields, where I know work is to be had. But there was no one to care for them. Besides, we ought to get the little girl away. She has asthma very badly; there are times when you can hear her breathing all over the house.

"I don't want charity," explained Hardy, "I want a job. Then I can hire someone to take care of them right and maybe arrange to have the little girl sent to some place where the air is lighter. I'm strong and willing to work. If people just know of my condition I am sure I can get a position."

Relief of Traffic Congestion.

[Pittsburgh Dispatch:] Arthur Williams, president of the Electric Vehicle Association of America, suggests that traffic congestion in New York, Chicago and other busy cities could be relieved by doing the trucking by night instead of by day. There is believed to be no reason why wholesale trucking could not be done at night. Goods may be moved from the terminals to warehouses and the moving in large quantities of merchandise to the large department stores does not have to be done in the daytime. Williams even suggests that coal might be delivered to large buildings at night. When the streets are not occupied by other traffic greater speed may be maintained and deliveries may be made in less time.

Cities and Towns South of Tehachepi's Top—Los Angeles County News.

Pasadena.

HUNDREDS SEE POPPY FIELDS.

Visitors Carry Away Armfuls of Blossoms.

Mountain Trails Prove Popular to the Multitude.

Pasadena Girls Wage Campaign Against Flies.

PASADENA, March 14.—Hundreds of Angelenos, as well as many from this city, yesterday, visited the Pasadena municipal poppy field, on the east bank of the Arroyo Seco, near Dakota street, and carried away great armfuls of the yellow flowers. The field is now at its prime. It is eleven acres in extent and though it has long been a place of many poppies the seed sown in addition by the city has produced myriads of new plants. The ground is covered with the orange sheen and yesterday young and old reveled in its beauty.

When the City Commission last fall, at the suggestion of A. Stephen Vavra and other residents along the Arroyo Seco, who sought to keep alive the reputation of Pasadena as a place where the State flower might be gathered, set aside this property as a city poppy bed, it was with the intention of throwing it open to all the world. It was to be a place where anyone might come, without let or hindrance, and gather all of the blossoms he might choose. And that is what it is. There are no fences around the property and there are no signs, "Don't pick the flowers." There is nobody to collect any tolls. It is Pasadena's poppy field and all are welcome.

Enough flowers to fill hayracks were carried away yesterday and without any apparent diminution in the number that remain. Pasadena is one place where there is now no stint of poppies.

The flowers are of many varieties. The city in planting them took pains that not all the seed should be of one variety. All are typical California poppies, but there are nuances of shade and shape of petal and length of stem in different parts of the field.

The mountain trails were no less popular. Yesterday was probably a record-breaker in travel over all near-by roads and trails. Over 650 persons passed through the toll gate on the summit of Mt. Wilson and the Pacific Electric Railroad kept its Mt. Lowe cars going as fast as it could send them out.

The trail in the Arroyo Seco has been sufficiently repaired so that mountain climbers, who start that way, may now reach Switzer's and the other camps in the upper arroyo. The foot bridges that were washed away by the storm have not yet been replaced, but logs have been placed across the stream so that the trip may be made without one's wetting one's shoes.

The guests at the large hotels, one and all, deserted the hostelries yesterday for automobile trips to mountain and sea shore.

AFTER THE FLIES.

One of the things that will claim the greatest attention in Pasadena this week will be the campaign of the girls of the Pasadena High School to rid the city of flies. This will open tomorrow and continue for a week, and it will be a preliminary to the general clean-up day of the city to further the work in which the women's clubs of the city will take a hand.

The movement at the High School originated with the members of the girls' class in sanitation and was furthered by the Girls' League. A number of the girls of the school last week delivered lectures in the different grammar schools of the city on the question of the fly extermination, and prizes have been offered for the largest quantities of dead flies brought to the High School. These will not be counted, nor touched in any way by the girls of the school, but they have already provided themselves with neat little measures. The committee will measure out the flies and award the prizes. The first of this work will probably be taken up tomorrow, and it may be the last of the week before it is completed.

There will also be many meetings and lectures and the question of the prevention of fly breeding will be given quite as much attention as that of exterminating flies.

The boys of the High School also have a project under consideration. It is that of planting roses around the fences of Tournament Park, so that these high board barriers, which are an eyesore to the neighborhood, may become veritable hedges of magnificent blooms. Just where the roses are to come from or how and when the work will be carried out, if it is, are details that have not yet been perfected.

LIKES PASADENA.

C. M. Schwab, president of the Bethlehem Steel Company, and one of the richest men in the country, was so favorably impressed with Pasadena during his recent visit here that those who know him and with whom he talked, though he has denied that he intends to make his home here, as was rumored, believe that some day at least the Crown City will number him among her citizens. He came to Pasadena to stay four days while on his way to San Francisco, and remained for two weeks. He left last Saturday night for San Francisco, and told the friends he had made at the Hotel Green, where he stayed, and whom he took for a ride to Riverside on a private train the last day of his visit here, that there is no place in the world as beautiful as Pasadena.

"Well, we're home again," he said as he re-entered the hotel Saturday night. "It does feel like home. I should like to stay here in Pasadena if it were not so far from the center of my business activities."

Schwab has gone north to make his annual inspection of his property there. Whether he will return to Pasadena before going East is not known.

ANOTHER WRINKLE.

Trip it as you please, on your feet or on the wheels.

The Hotel Maryland will tonight give on its tennis courts in the moonlight a supper roller tango party. The tango on roller skates will be the thing. But for those who do not tango and who skate there will be plain skating, and for those who do not skate but who tango there will be plain dancing.

Plans for the event have been in the making for several days and some new and unique features are promised by those who have charge of arrangements.

BODY IS WASHED ASHORE.

Angeleno Who Was Drowned Late in February Is Returned to Friends By Reversal of Tides.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDONDO BEACH, March 15.—The body of W. N. Weisner, who was drowned here February 27, was recovered yesterday near wharf No. 1 by John Jubelt, a local fisherman.

The remains, which were in an almost unrecognizable condition, were taken to the local undertaking parlors for identification. It was at first thought that it might be the body of Dr. Alexander, who was drowned at Hermosa Beach four weeks ago, but this idea was dispelled when his brother viewed the remains. A. B. Slade, who was with Weisner at the time of the accident, made a careful examination of the body, and positively identified him by two gold teeth on the right side of the jaw.

Relatives were immediately notified and the remains were taken to Los Angeles and interred in the Odd Fellows' Cemetery.

This drowning was another case of being caught in a tide-rip. Weisner and Slade, both carpenters, decided to take a swim February 27, after their day's work was done. The men were only a short time in the water when they were caught by the rip and carried seaward. They struggled frantically to get to the shore. Slade managed to reach shallow water and with the assistance of some people who witnessed the affair, was brought to the beach in an exhausted condition. All this time Weisner was battling with the heavy breakers, but became weaker and weaker and finally disappeared. Slade made every effort to go to the rescue of his friend, but the bystanders restrained him, owing to his weak condition. The deceased lived at 428 West Sixty-ninth street, Los Angeles, and leaves a wife and three small children.

Owing to the lack of parking accommodations for automobiles, F. R. Pancher has leased a site of land on Emerald street, and one on Commercial street for that purpose. The streets and alleys adjacent to the water front are entirely inadequate to handle the machines which come to the beach in pleasant weather, consequently the leasing of this extra land was necessary for the accommodation of the visitors.

SAN BERNARDINO, March 15.—Two wheels of a buggy were cut off clean, the horse liberated and a motorcycle wrecked in a most peculiar accident on Colton avenue near Urbita Springs late last night, but no one was injured.

Oscar Willard was riding the motorcycle. He failed to see the rig, which was being driven without lights by Dan Harvey and William Schmidt. The machine struck the buggy on the left side, both wheels being cut off and the shafts torn loose from the rig. The animal ran a mile and a half before it was caught. The motorcycle was almost completely wrecked, but Willard was thrown clear of the wreckage. Harvey and Schmidt were also lucky, although one of the pair was slightly bruised.

CHASE IS BUSY.

Col. Fred L. Chase, special organizer for the military branch of the Loyal Order of Moose, has completed the formation of the third California regiment at Sacramento, and as a result the first California brigade has been commissioned with Col. Chase of this city in command with the rank of brigadier-general. Companies A and B of the first regiment are located in this city, which is general headquarters of the branch, having been started here two years ago. It is now a world-wide movement.

APPOINTS COMMITTEE.

James R. H. Wagner, chairman of the California Orange Day Committee at Los Angeles, has wired the appointment of four San Bernardino people as members of the Executive Committee. They are Mrs. R. F. Garner, president of the Woman's Club; Mayor J. W. Catick, President W. M. Parker of the Chamber of Commerce and President A. G. Kendall of the Fourth National Orange Show which was closed on February 28. These will co-operate in making March 21 a great observance in honor of the king of California fruits.

Owing to the volume of evidence to be reviewed, the expected decision in the case of Prof. W. J. Alexander, head of the Ontario schools, which came before the County Board of Education as a result of charges of inefficiency and misconduct preferred by several women teachers of the Ontario schools, was not announced yesterday afternoon at the conclusion of the session. Early this week the board will determine whether or not Alexander is to be given a certificate to continue teaching.

The trial of Charles Lamb, charged with the murder of Bob Yancey at Hart on the desert several months ago, will begin before Judge F. F. Oster in the Superior Court Tuesday. Lamb will fight the case and claims both self-defense and the accidental discharge of his revolver as grounds for vindication for the crime. The men disputed over a key to a cabin near Hart. Lamb was formerly a United States Marshal in Nebraska.

David B. Williams, young husband of Mrs. Melissa Logadon Williams, who has filed suit for divorce on grounds of cruelty, has failed to answer and the case will go by default tomorrow, it is expected. The action follows the sensational trial of young Williams two months ago on a charge of administering poison to his aged spouse. He was acquitted.

Because of the flirting inclinations of his wife, Walter E. Van Loan, a Redlands rancher who has applied for divorce in the local courts, says he is wasting away to his grave. He charges that she has no regard for his feelings, lets the hired men show her attentions, squeezes the hand of street car conductors who collect her fares, and talks to men whom she never knew.

Famous Financier Looks Over the Redlands Orange Prospects to His Perfect Pleasure and Satisfaction.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, March 15.—Charles M. Schwab, with Mrs. Schwab and a party of Pasadena friends, was a visitor at Redlands yesterday afternoon, arriving in his private car attached to a special train. The Schwabs came to look over the orange belt towns and stopped off at Redlands to visit Mrs. Lucy Painter and Mrs. Mary Scott Burns, life-long friends of the Schwabs. Schwab paid a high tribute to Redlands, saying it was an exquisite little place, and that he had seen nothing more beautiful. In the party, were Mr. and Mrs. Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Joy, Mr. and Mrs. Green, Mr. and Mrs. Caveller, Mr. and Mrs. Grattan, Mr. and Mrs. Mosk, Miss Green and Miss Miller.

The marriage of Miss Ethel Adams of this city to Walter Bradshaw of North Yakima, Wash., took place yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Mary Adams. The Rev. Herbert Murkett officiated.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Ruth Adams, and the best man was Hugh Montgomery. Following the ceremony there was a reception and supper at the house. Mr. and Mrs. Bradshaw left in the late afternoon on the first stages of their journey to Mr. Bradshaw's apple ranch at North Yakima. They will make short stops at Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle and Tacoma. Miss Adams was a graduate of the High School class of '13, and was popular, both socially and in church circles.

The Phi Sigma Fraternity of the Redlands University is arranging for a dinner dance to be given at the Mission Inn at Riverside, Friday evening, March 20. Only fraternity men and their fair friends will be present. The party will go over from Redlands in motor cars. The fraternity, at its meeting last night, initiated four members and enjoyed a fraternity dinner, Ira Thompson being the host. The new men are Geddes, Gillette, Krause and Tinker.

Orange shipments from this city for the week just ended totaled 207 cars and twelve boxes, bringing the total shipments from here this season, to 1911 cars and thirty-four boxes. A total of 140 boxes for the week was the lemon shipment, bringing the seasonal total up to seven cars and 224 boxes. The fruit, both on the trees and in the packing-houses, is showing excellent keeping qualities. It is likely, however, that Redlands will have to begin icing in a few weeks if present warm weather continues.

What promises to be one of the most interesting ball games of the season will take place at the university grounds, Monday, when Hap Hogan's Tigers will try conclusions with the university boys. The Maroon ball team is a marvel this year and is in direct line for the championship.

There is not the slightest doubt but that it could have defeated either the Los Angeles or the White Sox teams, judging by the standard of their game here Tuesday. Cram and Hentschke are the battery for Redlands. Other tried players and two new men, Olesen and Lillie, will be in the game. The critical point will be the hitting, and all these players have been wielding the stick with good effect.

ST. SMILEY'S DAY.

March 17 is celebrated at Redlands not because of its connection with the famous Irish saint, but because it was the birthday of Albert K. Smiley, a man to whom the city owes a great deal.

Mr. Smiley remembered throughout the United States as the creator of the famous Smiley Heights, passed away about a year ago, but those who remember him with affection will celebrate his birthday by wearing his favorite flower, the pansy.

At the public library, the beautiful and useful building which Mr. Smiley gave to the city, there will be pansies in abundance. In the parks, two spacious beauty spots, which were also Mr. Smiley's gift to the city, the pansies are in bloom for the anniversary. The Contemporary Club will provide pansies for each of its members to wear, and the residents in general will pay this tribute to the memory of a departed friend and neighbor.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

UPLAND, March 14.—The Pacific Electric car, west bound, leaving Upland at 8:10 this morning, crashed into the rear end of the express car at North Pomona, just a few miles west of this city, resulting in the more or less serious injury of five Upland people.

CARS OVER OLD BRIDGE?

SOUTH PASADENA CITIZENS ARE IN AMIABLE MOOD.

Transportation Conditions Are Made Tolerable by the Decision of the Company to Make Cars Take Care of Daily Traffic—Ripley Shows a Personal Interest.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SOUTH PASADENA, March 15.—Attorney Walton J. Wood, Dr. F. S. Taylor and William Jochum of the Transportation Committee of the Lincoln Park League, had a meeting the latter part of the week with President Paul Shoup of the Pacific Electric Railway Company, relative to the transportation conditions existing at the west end of the city. He assured them that the company would get busy at once and within ten days, have cars either running over the old bridge or over the Salt Lake Railroad bridge. In any event the inconvenience now occasioned patrons of the road, would be obviated at the very earliest moment.

Since the subject was first taken up, President E. P. Ripley, of the Santa Fe, who is now a guest at the Raymond, coming each year to try a few strokes on the famous nine-hole golf course adjoining that hotel, has had the matter brought to his attention and has agreed that the Salt Lake may use the Santa Fe tracks between Los Angeles and Pasadena. As this leaves the Salt Lake bridge open over the cement bridge across the Arroyo, it is probable that the Pacific Electric will gain the use of it, and will at once electrify the tracks to make the connecting link in the old line so that through service may be resumed.

The rear of the shoe repairing shop of William Fairbrother, No. 1018 Mission street, caught fire last evening from a gas plate in the kitchen. When discovered, the wall was afire and had eaten into the G. H. Schultz men's furnishing store. The damage to the two stores will amount to about $75. A fireman walking past the store noticed the smoke coming out, and going in found Fairbrother almost suffocated with the smoke, but he did not seem to realize it was his own place that was on fire. Had it gone unnoticed but a few minutes longer, the entire block would have been consumed. The fire department extinguished the blaze in a short time following the alarm.

STITES PLUNGES INTO THE OCEAN.

Aviator Gives the Venetian Crowd a Thrill.

Engine Trouble Causes Drop of Hundreds of Feet.

Dog Causes Trouble in the Police Department.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENICE, March 15.—Falling from an estimated height of 2500 feet because of the failure of his motor to work properly, Frank Stites narrowly escaped death this afternoon when his aeroplane plunged into the ocean several hundred feet from shore. The cool-headed aviator climbed into the rigging of his air craft as soon as the engine trouble began and managed to lift the elevator vanes by hand. This saved him from crashing into the Ship Cafe, which he cleared by fifty feet. The machine dove into the sea midway between the Windward-avenue wharf and the old Maier Pier.

Just before his machine struck the water Stites took a quick dive to one side and after coming to the surface swam to his wrecked aeroplane which tossed up and down in the swells. Dave Moreno and "Doc" Townsend, two experienced life guards of the Abbot Kinney Company, at once sprang into the water from the beach and made their way to the aviator. They succeeded in towing the craft to the shore. The machine is badly damaged; in fact, it will need to be rebuilt, according to Stites.

The aviator came here yesterday from Griffith Park and this morning prepared to give an exhibition over the Strand. The machine was tested by Stites after the Curtiss model, carefully overhauled all the parts, but found engine trouble. The latter delayed him for half an hour. An immense crowd gathered on the beach and the walk between Venice and Ocean Park was black with spectators.

"I am bound to have trouble with my engine, but I'll not disappoint the crowd," remarked Stites to some newspaper men. He went into the air and flew back and forth between Ocean Park and Venice. Even the most inexperienced onlookers could tell that the craft was not working properly, for the humming of the engine was intermittent and sometimes the aviator was obliged to volplane from a great height until the engine started up again.

Without trying any of the dangerous dips or loops Stites circled and tinkered over his engine. Then about him warned him against attending, but shortly before 6 o'clock after the crowd had begun to leave Stites once more soared aloft. After maneuvering for a while the aviator started in the direction of the pier. To the horror of the spectators who strained their eyes at the figure in the sky, it was seen to suddenly come down.

The downward rush and the plunge into the ocean took but a moment. It saw that the only thing to do was to turn my elevator vanes by hand," said Stites as he sat dripping beside his wrecked aeroplane. "I did this and tried to tilt them up from my seat. I found it impossible. That is why I left the wheel and clambered back to the rear. I felt confident that I would clear the Ship Cafe and had no fear at the prospect of striking the water. I jumped to avoid the possibility of being hit with the engine."

The wrecked machine is valued at $2500 and with the exception of the engine it will have to be rebuilt. The shattered monoplane was viewed by hundreds of curious persons. Stites was provided with dry clothes by the life guards and left for the city after arranging to have his machine remain with the wreckage on the sands up the beach did not harm it. The accident and supposed death of Stites flew aloft the second time he was headed for Griffith Park.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Several months ago a pretty white dog was brought to the police station. He evidently had gone astray. Captain of Police Conley took care of the dog, which became quite attached to the place. Finally he gave it away to a family in Los Angeles. This afternoon a woman who gave her name as Mrs. [illegible] reached the police station to say that her black and white dog had been stolen from the automobile and she asked the aid of the police in locating the pet. Just then the telephone bell rang and an excited man who refused to give his name, said that a dog was raging and barking around a house on Westminster avenue. Detective Golding went there, only to find that a lonesome puppy was whining under the house. The man said the dog was "angry," but not "mad."

When it was brought to the station, Mrs. Graves showered upon the puppy with all her endearing terms. The dog wagged his tail with rapture and licked his mistress. With strange ingratitude he did not appear to recognize his former friends at the police station.

Harvey Beard, 13 years old, living with his parents at 1021 East Twelfth street, has emulated the former exploits of "Death Valley Scotty" today when he squandered in riotous living the sum of $1 and admits purloining from his mother's purse. Harvey was brought into the police department, but he brought with him a host of friends. The police seemed to be the center of attraction to the boys. He was followed by a large and ever increasing crowd of youngsters and the young spendthrift left a trail of empty ice cream cones and pop bottles behind him. North Beach to Whittier Harvey and his companions amused themselves with edibles purchased with the proceeds of the $1 and with games of chance they could find. Harvey profited the attractions and finally wound up on a long series of rides on the "Race Through the Clouds." He was finally brought to bear by the ever inquisitive policeman, Sergeant Chief of Police Lips, and Harvey broke down and admitted his guilt. He is now on probation for one week and will be released from home and from the police station to-morrow for his youthful escapade. Harvey will undoubtedly be brought back to the Juvenile Court for further punishment.

TO MINE GOLD IN CALAVERAS.

Company Formed to Develop Many Properties.

Work of Blue Lead Channel Will Be Worked.

Holdings Include Option on Fabulous River Claims.

[LOCAL WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN ANDREAS (Calaveras county) March 15.—Articles of incorporation have been filed with the Calaveras County Clerk, of the California Mines Company, with head offices in Minneapolis and a branch office in San Francisco. The company has a capitalization of $50,000 shares, with a par value of $1 each. Behind the company are men of mining knowledge, owning properties which will be developed inside the Calaveras group and on the mother lode, and the Blue Lead gravel mines in Calaveras county.

The company has purchased about 40 acres of land in the Blue Lead channel, and has an option on the adjoining property. This channel is noted for its rich gravel, and it is said that $50,000 was taken in early days from fourteen miles of gravel in a single group.

It is said the company holds options to purchase the so-called "Stanislaus River properties," consisting of 2000 acres on the Stanislaus River and Angels Creek, and several mining claims, with a view to working the mother lode of over 1000 feet uninterruptedly from the Stanislaus River to Carson Hill, as soon as the work in the channel has advanced sufficiently to justify the erection of a mill, a battery of forty stamps will be built. From the experience of the neighboring mines, it is certain that ore will pay values as low as $1.35 per ton can be mined and milled here profitably.

Reports dated the following officers: President, D. C. Demarest, Oakland; vice-president, J. Emil Haynes, Minneapolis; secretary-treasurer and general manager, George Haynes, Minneapolis; consulting engineer, Walter De Varila; attorney, H. Brown, both of San Francisco. The directorate includes all of the above mentioned together with Dr. J. Fordham and P. Landman of Aberdeen.

The latter was defeated by a radical male constituency early and as often as it has been submitted for adoption.

DIGGING TUNNEL AT STANISLAUS.

ADIT IS TO TAP THE BIG BUCHANAN CHANNEL.

This Work of the Springfield Development Company Is to Drain Rich Section Where Water Has Hitherto Been Too Great a Force to Resist.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SONORA (Tuolumne County) March 15.—The Springfield Flat Tunnel and Development Company, which owns 1000 acres and seven miles of undisturbed ancient river channels, is running an adit tunnel from Dead Man's Gulch on the western slope of the Stanislaus Canyon to tap the big Buchanan channel. This tunnel, which it is estimated will be run 1700 feet to reach the channel, is now in 600 feet. When finished it will drain one of the richest sections discovered by the argonauts.

The level of the tunnel is 100 feet lower than the bedrock of the converging channels and is being run on a grade of 17.6 per cent. It will strike fifty or sixty feet beneath the channels at their junction, and will give them perfect drainage. The tunnel is an immense affair, 8x8 feet and can handle 2000 tons of gravel daily. It will reduce the cost of milling the gravel from $3 per ton to 90 cents or less.

The channels which run through the property are known locally as the big Buchanan, Ranch, Fox, Clark, Rancheri, Barry and Slaughter House. The Buchanan, thought by many to be the main channel, is the first that will be tapped by the adit.

The district is a part of the old Columbia and Springfield Flat sections, the latter of which yielded $55,000,000 from 800 acres. In preliminary work, gravel with values ranging from $1.25 to $600 were uncovered, but the same force, water, which drove the forty-niners from the diggings was too much for the modern appliances.

RAISES WEALTH OUT OF OCEAN.

TACOMA DIVER FINDS FORTUNE IN ALASKAN WATERS.

Walter McCray in Two Months Recovers Valuable Bronze from the Wrecked Liner Olympia and Other Material from the Saratoga and the Santa Clara.

TACOMA (Wash.) March 15.—Between twelve and fourteen tons of solid bronze tailshaft, anchors and chains off the wrecked liner Olympia, lost in Alaska three years ago, sixty-four tons of rich copper ore raised from the bottom of the bay at Ellamar after thirteen years, brass, copper and ore from the old liner Saratoga, sunk six years ago, and the bronze propeller blade lost by the steamer Santa Clara twelve years ago, will shortly arrive here from Alaska.

This rich salvage represents two month's work by Walter McCray, the Tacoma diver, who returned today. The material recovered from the Olympia alone is worth $4000. Four blades of her propeller, weighing two tons each, were disconnected from the hub and raised. McCray says:

"I found two spare blades in the Olympia's afterhold. In the same place I found one spare hub, weighing three and one-half tons, two spare tailshafts. Lying on a reef, where it had evidently been cast when the ship went ashore, I found her three and a half-ton anchor."

McCray entered the Olympia's forward chain locker through a trap hatch to recover a hundred fathoms of chain. Repeatedly his clothes caught fast, holding him inside. It took him six hours to saw a larger opening around a hatch endangering his life. He found the Olympia's hull pierced from stem to stern by pointed rocks. Some stick through her bottom fourteen feet. Her engines were shoved up through her deck.

McCray inspected the sunken lighthouse tender Armeria, wrecked two years ago. At Ellamar, while blasting out submerged rock for a mining company, he discovered and recovered the Santa Clara's solid bronze propeller, which will net him a small fortune. While he was working on the Saratoga the steamship Mariposa bumped on a rock. McCray put a cement patch on her bottom, enabling her to reach Puget Sound.

said she had at times thought herself a motion picture actress and on other occasions believed herself to be a great male impersonator.

It was learned that recently the girl had been under treatment for mental weakness, being attended by Dr. S. O. Coolidge, who has offices in the Black building. When asked what he knew about the condition of Mrs. O'Dell, the physician spoke in the same terms as had the husband.

"Mrs. O'Dell is very hysterical," said Dr. Coolidge, "and at times she is mentally unbalanced. I saw her a week ago, however, and at that time she appeared to be all right. Her last attack was quite severe and lasted a week."

"HAD BRAINSTORMS."

Dr. Coolidge said he first attended Mrs. O'Dell last November, when she was living at the Acacia Hotel. He did not remember who had summoned him, but he stated that she gave him the name of Mrs. O'Dell, and at that time was suffering from brainstorm. His connection with the O'Dells, according to Dr. Coolidge, was brought about through a medical society of which the woman was a member.

Further developments reveal that Mrs. O'Dell has been masquerading under the names of Ella Evans and May Haugh. Two weeks ago she was arrested under the latter name for distributing worthless checks. At that time she was suffering from some sort of mental strain and after receiving attention at the Receiving Hospital, testimony by the attending physician resulted in her discharge.

While under treatment in the hospital, Mrs. O'Dell spoke of a man named Walters, and stated that he was her fiancee. When asked if he knew anyone by the name of Walters, the husband responded that he did and alleged that his domestic difficulties were brought about by the attentions of the man to his wife.

At the house during the meeting of the couple, yesterday, there was present a man known as Walters, and, according to O'Dell, he is the man who is referred to by Mrs. O'Dell.

Previous to her marriage with O'Dell, the girl was Emily Splawn, the daughter of Mrs. Marie Splawn, who lives at No. 146 West Twenty-eighth street. Efforts to question Mrs. Splawn were fruitless, it being stated that she is confined to her bed with pneumonia.

In furnishing the proof of his wife's identity, O'Dell told the history of his courtship with Miss Splawn.

"I became acquainted with her in November, 1911," said O'Dell, "and the following May we were married right here in Los Angeles. It was not until we had lived together for several months that I became acquainted with my wife's folks, but I know them all very well now and they will come forward and vouch that Emily is my wife and not Dorothy Arnold."

"PURE NONSENSE."

SAYS FRANCIS ARNOLD.

NEW YORK, March 15.—The claim of Emily Splawn O'Dell of Los Angeles, Cal., that she is Dorothy Arnold, who disappeared from her home in this city in 1910, was today described as "pure nonsense" by the father of the missing girl, Francis R. Arnold.

John S. Keith, attorney for Arnold, who has been taking an active part in the world-wide search for the girl, expressed himself similarly. Some time ago, said Keith, a letter in which knowledge of Miss Arnold's whereabouts was asserted, was received from an attorney in Los Angeles but no attention has been paid to it because it appeared to offer no better hope of a solution of the mystery than hundreds of other communications of a like nature. Keith denied that Arnold had sent money to the woman claiming to be his daughter.

Young Girls Thrown on the World—The Turning Point.

"To hide true worth from public view
Is burying diamonds in their mine.
All is not gold that shines, 'tis true;
But all that is gold ought to shine."

Of course it is a burden to the couple poor in purse to support a large family of children at home. If the eldest is a girl who has reached her fourteenth year, the parents are obliged to consider the necessity of sending her out into the world to earn her own living. She may be small of her age, her liking equally divided between her school books and her dolls, with perchance, a leaning toward ribbon bows to tie up her braided hair. The parents look about and see other girls of equally tender age in factory and shop. It is their envelopes every Saturday night which keeps the wolf from the door of other homes close by. There are a few little girls who look forward with great enthusiasm to entering the ranks of the breadwinners.

Other young girls look toward the event of leaving home to work with a heart full of dread. Not that they are less ambitious, but they crave more schooling and the play hour with their mates when it is over. The world's dark clouds have not as yet swept their hearts. Parents see an opening for the daughter when some adjacent factory advertises for additional help. The hard-working mother, with a large brood to care for at home, rarely ever finds time to accompany her daughter.

It is the turning point of a girl's life if she's sent alone.

She is not versed in the wage of toil. She contracts to do a woman's work for a child's pittance. It depends upon the companions with whom she finds herself surrounded whether her work-day life will be a burden so heavy she will stagger under it or live through with patient tolerance. Very few young girls accept work and then feel bitter because they have it to do. The pitiful part comes in when they ply their labor, year out and year in, over a long stretch of years, when there is no rainbow of hope stretched from the present to the future.

All girls do not follow the same beaten track when thrown upon the world; some girlish natures never lose the sweetness of early childhood. Others who rub elbows with the world and are buffeted round from one place of employment to the other grow inured to that hardship. Their lips soon use their wonted smile. It is the belief among the majority of girls who earn their own living that the only door by which they may hope to escape from it is marriage. This door is held open to them while their youth and beauty lasts. After that they fancy it is rarely open to them.

The majority of girls who go to work very young are pleased, nay happy, to hand over their pay envelopes unopened to their parents at the outset. It does not take the average girl very long to learn from her companions that this is a sacrifice oftimes. Quite a few girls are fond of dressing well. Other girls who imitate their example find very little left for the home folks. The parents realize when it is too late that it is an error of judgment in taking a girl out of school who is yet young in years to earn her daily bread. Even though a girl's wages might be badly needed to fill out the family purse, sometimes it would be the wiser course to let them get a little more schooling.

Her wages may slip through her fingers, but education—never!

When a little girl has to face the world, to make her own living, her home folks should exert themselves to give her what pleasure they can afford. She may have many sorrows and heartaches in her daily life which she does not burden them by telling of. Discouragement should be warded off from the heart of youth; for no one can tell what might take place in a day to change the girl's lonely existence to a different one.

WHY MAN IS MORTAL.

An African Legend in Which the Snake Enters as the Disturbing Element.

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat:] Why man is not immortal was among the many interesting things explained by Miss Alice Werner in a lecture on the native races of East Africa at King's College, London.

The story comes from the tribe of the Galla, who declare that the black and white hornbill was sent down from the skies to man with the message that he must never be afraid when he grew old and weak, because he would not die, but slip out of his old skin and become young again.

But on the way the hornbill met a snake eating a carcass, and after much persuasion the snake consented to share his meal in exchange for the hornbill's news from the sky god. "The news is," said the hornbill, "that you will never die, but just slip out of your old skin."

The sky god was so angry with the bird for delivering the message to the snake instead of to man, that he endowed it with a permanent indigestion, and to this day the poor hornbill chants from the treetop a doleful song which means, "My God, my God. I am being destroyed."

DIFFER OVER TUNNEL WIDTH.

Advisory Board Favors Adding Several Feet.

Mezzanine Promenade Offered for Pedestrians.

First-Street Compromise Is Unwise, Says Storrow.

Difference of opinion as to the width of the proposed Second-street tunnel between the Tunnels Advisory Board and the City Engineer is noted by Samuel Storrow, chairman of the Advisory Board, in a report to be sent to the City Council today. This report is in response to a resolution from the Council asking the commission to report progress and the status of the tunnels plans.

While the difference of opinion cannot be said to have contributed to the delay of the tunnel plans, upon this difference hangs the ultimate construction of at least one tunnel, and the future attitude of the Los Angeles Railway with regard to laying lines through the Second-street tunnel.

The deliberation of the commission, composed of Storrow, William Mulholland and Arthur Benton, has consisted of an emphatic statement by Mulholland that a brick lining for the Second-street tunnel would be undesirable. Mulholland says concrete is more desirable if "the footings under the walls are made broad enough to transmit the pressure from the load overhead to the ground underneath."

The design of the Second-street tunnel, as suggested by the City Engineer, provides for two twenty-four-foot bores. Twelve feet of the street width are taken up in this design by walls. This, says, Storrow, is using too much of the street width for walls, and is a serious loss. Storrow believes the walls in the street width should not be greater than six feet. This, he argues, would leave a tunnel space of fifty-four feet in the clear, allowing twenty-seven feet for each bore.

SIXTY FEET WIDE.

Accordingly, Storrow is preparing plans for a tunnel sixty feet wide from one outside wall to the other, retaining all possible elements of design and construction shown in the City Engineer's reports.

Since only 5 per cent. of the traffic is by foot, Mulholland has recommended that pedestrians be required to use a mezzanine sidewalk through the tunnel, thus giving people a chance to walk above the vehicle traffic, out of harm's reach, and giving vehicle traffic the added advantage of more room.

"A large number of business men have spoken to me about these tunnels," continues the report, "urging that they be pushed through at once, but invariably saying that they considered the future use of the tunnels as a possible means of carrying car lines to be so absolutely essential, that any other type of design would be largely wasting money, and would not be helping the present congestion in the neighborhood of Sixth and Seventh streets, and would not help the merchants north of Sixth and Seventh streets."

In a letter to Councilman Snowden, Storrow speaks against a compromise with property owners over the proposed widening of West Fifth street to 120 feet. Storrow says he is open to conviction that a street of less width would take care of the traffic, but he does not believe that the width should be curtailed very much. That the proponents of the widening project can get ample petitions favoring it is another assertion by Storrow.

SAYS THEY FAVOR IT.

Greater First street, 120 feet wide, furnishes no excess capacity when traffic conditions have become fully developed, says Storrow to Councilman Bryant. He urges the passage of an ordinance declaring notice of intention to widen First street, and claims that "a majority cannot be obtained in the assessment district adverse to such a project."

"I might add," says Storrow in conclusion, "that we are much hampered by the fact that the City Engineer has not brought back a report on the design and estimate of cost of the 120-foot greater First street as requested in the order of the City Council dated December 1, 1913. Consequently we are somewhat up in the air as to estimates of cost."

OLD AND NEW CONTRASTED.

Paintings of French Artist Includes Angeleno Sky-line, Old Mission and Other Views.

The old and the new in California are delightfully contrasted in a collection of fourteen paintings by Jules Pages, the Paris artist, which will be on view this week, beginning today, at Steckel's gallery, No. 336½ South Broadway. The artist has achieved the pleasing result of showing local atmosphere without being conventional.

The collection in a forceful way tells the story of progress, showing the old missions, adobe dwellings and other features of the romantic past in contrast with the modern bungalow, office buildings and metropolitan scenes in Los Angeles.

One of the more interesting of the paintings is a triptych, "Los Angeles, a December Afternoon," showing a view of the downtown district from the hill west of the Times Building. The center panel reproduces the Times Building, Chamber of Commerce, City Hall, Washington and California buildings, Broadway, and a suggestion of the distant hills.

The left panel shows the Higgins and Security buildings, St. Vibiana's Cathedral, the gas tanks and a portion of Spring street. The right panel is a view of the Union League building, Y.M.C.A. building and Hill street.

"I searched for a month and a half before I found a position that gave me the desired view of the city's sky-line," Pages said yesterday. "I got exactly what I wanted on the hill west of The Times. The view from there is exquisite."

These are the titles of the other paintings: "Mission San Fernando;" "In a Park, Oakland;" "The Estuary, Oakland;" "The Fountain, San Fernando;" "San Pedro, Fishermen's Wharfs;" "In Cahuenga Pass;" "Moonlight, San Fernando;" "A Glimpse of San Pedro;" "A Glimpse of San Pedro;" "Among the Eucalyptus;" "Old Adobe, Los Angeles;" "Old Adobe, Los Angeles;" "Chinatown."

Pages is a native of California who has won fame in Paris. He received honorable mention in the Paris salon in 1895 and a gold medal from the salon in 1898. One of his salon pictures was purchased by the French government in 1906 for the National Museum of the Luxembourg. Pages is a professor at the Julian Academy, Paris.

IRISH TO HONOR PATRON SAINT.

ANCIENT ORDER OF HIBERNIANS PREPARE CELEBRATION.

Song and Praise to Be Heard in Commemoration of St. Patrick's Day by True Sons of the Emerald Isle—Classic Airs on Temple Auditorium Organ.

The traditions of old Ireland, its heroes and its patron saint, will find expression tomorrow night at the Temple Auditorium when thousands of Irishmen and Irishwomen, fresh from the old sod or once or twice removed, will gather in annual celebration of St. Patrick's day. The affair, which is a big annual event, is to be given under the auspices of the Ancient Order of Hibernians.

To make this year's celebration better than any other and more unique and more appealing in its various features, those who have been busy arranging the entertainment have provided a programme of varied excellence, combining oratory, music and story.

Mayor Rose and city and county officers, together with judges of the Superior Court, will occupy places on the stage with those who are to participate in the programme. P. P. O'Brien of the Board of Public Works, who is county president of the Hibernians, will preside.

Mr. O'Brien's daughter, Miss Marie O'Brien, organist at St. Vincent's, will play the big organ at Temple Auditorium. She has selected a number of classic Irish airs, and will intersperse the other features of the programme with strains of Irish melodies familiar to the old and the young. Miss O'Brien is regarded as one of the best organists in the city.

Brother Leo, professor of English literature at St. Mary's College, Oakland, will deliver an address upon "The Mother of the Strong" in which he will show the conspicuous and notable parts played in the history of the world by the sons of Ireland that either went forth or were sent forth to conquer. Brother Leo is an author of wide repute, writing under the nom de plume of "Will Scarlett."

Deputy District Attorney Ford, president of Los Angeles Division No. 1, Ancient Order of Hibernians, will deliver an address upon "Home Rule in Ireland," a subject quite close to the heart of every true Irishman.

One of the happy features arranged for the evening is the singing of Irish songs by W. A. Steffen, sometimes known as the John McCormack of Los Angeles. He is a lyric Irish tenor, and one of his songs will be "Molly Malone," written by J. McMahon of this city.

Mayor Rose will deliver a brief address of welcome to the audience.

Father Paul Dillon of St. Cecelia parish has promised to deliver an oration on "The Day We Celebrate."

Another feature of the musical side of the programme is to be a song by P. J. O'Donnell, county naturalization clerk, who possesses a rich baritone voice.

The programme will commence sharply at 8 o'clock.

out two, one in the firm's name and one in his own.

HIS SIDE OF IT.

Suspicion was not roused, Morgan declared Saturday, even in face of Eddy's large expenditures, because of statements that in a measure accounted for his extravagances.

"He led us to believe," said Morgan, "that he had an estate that paid him $65 a month, and also that his aunt was wealthy and he received money from her. Now, we find that the estate was lost years ago and his aunt hasn't a penny. She is, in fact, dependent on Eddy."

Mrs. Wright, on the other hand, declares she does not know of any estate Eddy ever had.

She further says, however, that part of the $11,532.42 shown by Eddy's personal bank account and spent in check form in two years, was Eddy's own money and not taken from the firm. Eddy's salary in this time has totaled less than $2000.

His employers say that 80 per cent. of the money he took he banked, and the rest he spent in cash. They assert the actual defalcations they have traced amount to $15,500, and eight months of accounts have yet to be checked over.

"We have given him every chance to make restitution," Morgan said. "Since the discovery, we have continued him on here, at his regular salary, which was paid up to Saturday night a week ago. However, while he has turned in his automobile and other property, there is a great loss to the firm that he does not seem able to cover.

"A week ago, I made up my mind to prosecute, but his aunt came here and pleaded for him and I delayed, giving more time. I told him not to try to run away, because we would trace him to the end of creation.

"Thursday, I told him he would have to show the money by Saturday or I would have a complaint issued. I was dissuaded Saturday because courts were closed and there would be difficulty about his bail. I shall certainly swear to a complaint tomorrow. There will probably be two counts against Eddy."

Mrs. Wright, the aunt, says that little warning of an impending prosecution was given; that Eddy had been assured right along that he would be given time in which to make good, and that, in view of this, he employed an attorney only Friday night.

GOOD BOY, SAYS AUNT.

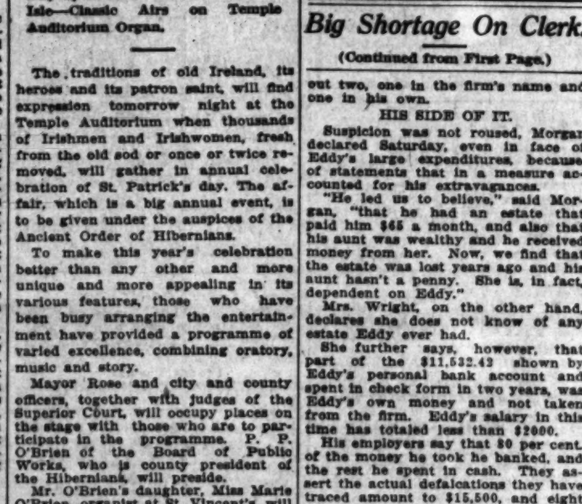
"He is a good boy," she said, tearfully, "and has been so kind to me. There is just this one thing against him. He has not denied it. On the other hand, he has done everything to help Courtney straighten it out. He hasn't any bad habits, as his employers told his attorney. No, it is not women. He was a precocious boy, fond of music, and I think he would have been a great musician if he had had an opportunity to develop his talent. When he was a little fellow, he was an ardent Sunday-school worker, and he is now a member of the Baptist Church.

"He says he doesn't know why he did this thing. He had been sick and was $2500 in debt when he went to work for Courtney. As soon as his creditors found he was employed, they hounded him nearly to death. Remember that. He was driven almost to desperation.

"He does not belong to clubs and has not been extravagant in his dressing. He would make one suit last two or three years. I was astonished when he bought his first automobile, but I assumed that he was going heavily into debt and used to remonstrate with him about it."

The flat at No. 948½ New Hampshire street, where Eddy and his aunt have been living recently, was occupied, she says, at the suggestion of Morgan, as more in keeping with the condition of affairs than a larger house in a more extravagant quarter of town.

Eddy has been in Los Angeles for ten years. He came here from Chicago with his mother and sister, on the advice of a physician. Before leaving Chicago, he was an $80-a-month book-keeper.



"Los Angeles, a December Afternoon."

M. Jules Pages of Paris, painting the city skyline from Fort Hill. This picture, the center panel of which shows the Times Building, Chamber of Commerce, City Hall and office buildings, is among the paintings which the artist is exhibiting at Steckel's gallery.
